Spies in Uniform Matthew S. Seligmann,2006-01-05 Why did the British government declare war on Germany in August 1914 Was it because Germany posed a threat to British national security Today many prominent historians would argue that this was not the case and that a million British citizens died needlessly for a misguided cause This book counters such revisionist arguments Matthew Seligmann disputes the suggestion that the British government either got its facts wrong about the German threat or even as some have claimed deliberately invented it in order to justify an otherwise unnecessary alignment with France and Russia By examining the military and naval intelligence assessments forwarded from Germany to London by Britain s service attach s in Berlin its men on the spot Spies in Uniform clearly demonstrates that the British authorities had every reason to be alarmed From these crucial intelligence documents previously thought to have been lost Dr Seligmann shows that in the decade before the First World War the British government was kept well informed about military and naval developments in the Reich In particular the attach s consistently warned that German ambitions to challenge Britain posed a real and imminent danger to national security As a result the book concludes that the British government's perception of a German threat before 1914 far from being mistaken or invented was rooted in hard and credible intelligence Literary Pioneer ,1847 Winning Space Brandon J. Weichert,2020-09-15 When President Donald J Trump announced the creation of America's sixth branch of the military the United States Space Force many in Washington scoffed But U S rivals in China Russia Iran and North Korea took notice Since the end of the Cold War these American foes have chafed under the full spectrum dominance that the American superpower has enjoyed globally They have identified space as a key strategic domain where they can challenge and possibly defeat the United States military And depriving the U S military and or its economy of access to space during an international crisis could spell doom for the United States in other strategic domains land sea air and cyberspace After all space is critical for America's vaunted information dominance Satellites overhead are the backbone of America's global military Remove them from orbit and U S forces worldwide are rendered deaf dumb and blind What's more space is a more than 1 trillion economy just waiting to be developed Whichever country gets there first will have considerable economic and geopolitical power on Earth Despite President Trump's creation of the Space Force Swamp Dwellers in Washington continue resisting his reforms to U S space and technology policy Winning Space tracks the increasing competition the United States is facing in the technology sector and depicts how the United States has been engaged in a Second Space Race and how it has been losing Author Brandon Weichert warns how the United States is at risk for a Pearl Harbor type event in space Weichert advocates for the full embrace of Trump's reforms for America's flailing space policy while also calling for a minimum 1 trillion investment in advanced research and development here in the United States to stay ahead of America's advancing foes Contrary to what many Americans may think the United States has been declining in space and the high technology development sector Should it lose its dominance in these areas it will surely lose its superpower status The next decade presents U S policymakers one last chance to preserve the superpower status that America fought two world wars and the Cold War to build Time is not on our side We are on notice but we have not noticed The Parliamentary History of England from the Earliest Period to the Year 1803 William
