The ^ASocial Psychology of Disability Dana Dunn,2014-11-10 This book reviews classic and current scholarship on the experience of disability emphasizing interactions between persons with disabilities PWD and non disabled people With respect to the treatment and counseling of PWDs social psychological approaches aim to avoid biased simplistic and prejudicial conclusions by putting people first not their disabilities The book is aimed at students and professionals though it will also help families caregivers and policy makers understand the social psychology of disability      The Persuasion

Handbook James Price Dillard,Michael Pfau,2002-07-23 The Persuasion Handbook provides readers with cogent comprehensive summaries of research in a wide range of areas related to persuasion From a topical standpoint this handbook takes an interdisciplinary approach covering issues of interest to interpersonal and mass communication researchers as well as psychologists and public health practitioners Persuasion is presented in this volume on a micro to macro continuum moving from chapters on cognitive processes the individual and theories of persuasion to chapters highlighting broader social factors and phenomena related to persuasion such as social context and larger scale persuasive campaigns Each chapter identifies key challenges to the area and lays out research strategies for addressing those challenges      The Oxford Handbook of Human Motivation Richard M. Ryan,2012-02-16 The Oxford Handbook of Human Motivation collects together the field s top theorists and researchers to provide overviews of today s most noteworthy theories topical chapters on phenomena from ego depletion to flow recent work on the biological bases of motivation and applied in chapters on therapy work sport education and relationships      Attitude Change Peter Suedfeld,2017-09-08 What are attitudes and how are they modified The many opposing theories to answer this question reflects not only the complexity but also the importance of the field A central concern of social psychology attitude change is also relevant to the study of human behavior in general and a matter of major significance to the world outside the laboratory Valid and useful theories of attitude change are thus of far reaching consequence At the same time the richness and flexibility of attitude structures and the numerous methodological problems involved in studying them make the development of a definitive theory difficult if not impossible For these reasons many explanations have been offered but none have been greatly accepted The essays included here give voice to a broad sampling of these competing viewpoints For years attention has been directed mostly to the individual s need to maintain harmony within him and several of the authors focus on this concept Cognitive dissonance theory is evaluated in particular detail Ideas derived from other areas of psychology and attitude change theories based on learning perception and cognitive motivation are also well represented in this volume In his introduction Suedfeld evaluates these major approaches as well as several less well known alternatives In weighing the strengths and weaknesses of each system he considers the limits of the applications of the various theories and the problems the theorists face This book will be welcomed in a variety of undergraduate and graduate courses and by scholars and educated laymen seeking information on the current state of knowledge in this field     Advances in Experimental Social Psychology ,1989-05-01 Advances in Experimental Social Psychology     Sentencing as a Human Process John Hogarth,1971-12-15 Sentencing is not a neutral or mechanical act it is a human process highly charged affectively and motivationally Sentencing decisions take place in a social environment of laws facts ideas and people This study of sentencing behaviour is primarily concerned with the mental processes involved in decision making It is based on intensive interviews and on measures of the information processing ability of seventy one full time judges in Ontario The work covers such topics as problems of sentencing particularly existing disparities social and economic background of judges and their varying penal philosophies the nature and measurement of judicial attitudes toward crime punishment and related issues prediction of sentencing behaviour based on attitude scales which the author has constructed and also on fact patterns perceived by judges and the impact of social and legal constraints on the sentencing process The study concludes that there exists a very high correlation between a judges definition of situation and the sentence which he imposes and that while sentences meted out for a particular law violation under similar circumstances may differ among judges judges are highly consistent within themselves Using these conclusions the author constructs a model of judicial behaviour and shows how this model can be used to predict and to explain sentencing and breaks new ground in the use of the social and behavioural sciences as sources of data to explain the sentencing process

Freedom and Reactance Robert A. Wicklund,2024-10-01 Brehm s theory of psychological reactance in 1966 marked the beginning of a psychological investigation into the consequences of losing freedom The concept freedom had been touched upon intermittently by disciplines such as political science and philosophy and even on occasion by psychology but Brehm s treatment had been the first analysis of freedom to spark experimental investigations into the variety of reactions to infringements on freedom Originally published in 1974 Freedom and Reactance was written to capture the many directions taken by the theory since 1966 and to integrate reactance theory with theoretical ideas that applied to some of the same phenomena Today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context     Toward Transformation in Social Knowledge K. J. Gergen,2012-12-06 This century has been characterized by a strong and pervasive belief in certainty through science It is a belief that has been nurtured by philosophers scientists and governing bodies alike And where vocal reassurance has failed to convince modern technology has more than compensated It has in effect been a century in at last to be making significant headway toward objective which humankind seemed and enduring truth Yet as the century winds toward its conclusion this optimistic belief has begun to confront a challenging array of attacks Widespread signals of concern are increasingly evident and in the philosophy of science little but remnants remain of the bold rationale that once promised truth through method. One now senses a profound alteration taking place in both the concept of knowledge and of science an alteration that may prove to be as significant as the Copernican revolution the emergence of Darwinism or the development of Freudian theory. As a result of the latter transformations humans are no longer seen as the center of the universe as essentially different from animals or as fully conscious of the wellsprings of their activity. In the present case however we confront the loss of the human capacity for objective knowledge.

Psychological Theories from a Structuralist Point of View Hans Westmeyer, 2012-12-06

Metatheoretical and more generally methodological analyses of psychological problems and theories have a long tradition however their impact on scientific practice especially on the clarification and testing of existing psychological theories and the formulation of new ones has so far been less than spectacular. The increased interest in theoretical psychology visible during the past ten or twenty years is associated with the hope that a change of this situation will gradually be effected. Thus in their preface to the proceedings of the founding conference of The International Society for Theoretical Psychology Baker et al 1987 pp Vf 1 take up 2 once more the objectives of a theoretical psychology formulated by Koch already in 1951:

- a Education in the methodology and logic of science
- b Analysis of methodological or foundational problems that are more or less unique to psychology
- c Internal systematization of suggestive but formally defective theoretical formulations
- d Intertranslation and differential analysis of conflicting theoretical formulations
- e Construction of new theory

Reflecting on possible reasons for the relative inefficacy so far of methodological and metatheoretical analyses in psychology it seems to me that the following two have been of prime importance:

- 1 Many of the existing analyses are at best tenuously connected to concrete existing psychological theories i.e. they deal with their subject matter in a too abstract detached way. This detracts from the persuasive power which their results might otherwise have and impedes the realization of these results within scientific practice.

Motivation and Action Heinz Heckhausen, 2012-12-06

The translation of this volume has been a long and sometime arduous journey giving nearly literal meaning to the Latin term translatum meaning to carry across. In fact it required many journeys both geographically between Canada and Germany and figuratively between German and English language thought and culture between the mind of a German professor and that of his American colleague. Whether or not it was all worthwhile must be left to the reader's judgment but let me outline the rationale for embarking on this venture. When the first German edition of this book appeared in 1980 it was acclaimed not only by German scholars but by those outside the German speaking community as well. In fact it received extremely favorable reviews even in English language journals which is unusual for a foreign text. It was recognized that this was far more than just another text book on motivation. For one thing it exposed and examined the multi faceted roots that have contributed to contemporary theory and research in motivation. The author skillfully examined the motivational concepts theories and research that have emanated from many areas of psychology such as learning theory social psychology personality psychoanalysis and clinical psychology      New Directions in Helping Jeffery Fisher, 1983-01-28 New Directions in Helping Recipient Reactions to Aid Volume 1 reviews the state of knowledge in the reactions of recipients in helping interactions. It provides an overview of the entire field in depth coverage in major areas and a preview of important future research directions. The book is organized into five parts. Part I discusses the types of recipient reactions, some consistent relationships between the conditions associated recipient reactions and approaches that have been used to conceptualize the effects of aid on those who receive it. Part II focuses on theoretical perspectives for conceptualizing reactions to help. Part III examines individual differences in responses to aid. Part IV takes up various determinants of reactions to help. Part V presents some final thoughts about research on reactions to help. This book will be of interest to social psychologists as well as to members of a number of other disciplines e.g. clinical psychologists, social workers, counseling psychologists, educational psychologists, political scientists and sociologists.

The Social Influence Processes James T. Tedeschi, 2017-07-12 Social psychologists have always been concerned with two person interactions and the factors enabling one person to gain dominance. Although social psychology has devised a revolutionary set of techniques to investigate the phenomenon of power, hypotheses are too often ambiguously stated, research programs end in cul de sacs and experiments take on the character of one shot studies. In an attempt to stimulate new directions in research and to provide cumulative emphasis on the development of scientific theory in the area of power relations, Tedeschi has assembled original and path breaking essays from a dozen outstanding scholars and researchers in the behavioral sciences. More tightly integrated than leading books in the field of power relations, The Social Influence Processes focuses on two person interactions. A full explanation of the terms power and influence is followed by an analysis of the major variables in connections between two persons that must be taken into account in a scientific theory of social influence. The subsequent chapters respond to the categories established attempting a comprehensive construction of social reality and offering suggestions and techniques for measuring and ordering its complexity. Particular areas of research and theory are isolated for consideration in depth, such topics as personality as a power construct. Power and Personality by Henry L. Minton, Influence in Exchange Theory: The Tactical Use of Social Power by Andrew Michener and Robert W. Suchner, and Leadership through Charisma: Interpersonal Attraction and Social Influence by Elaine Walster and Darcy Abrahams. In the final chapter, Tedeschi, Thomas Bonoma and Barry R. Schlenker attempt to provide a general theory of social influence processes as they affect the target individual by reviewing the research literature in their own theoretical terms. This remarkable volume will be of interest to students as well.
