Social Studies Education in East Asian Contexts Kerry J. Kennedy,2020-07-28 The book explores the state of social studies education within selected East Asian societies and provides some insights into distinctive classroom practices In an increasingly volatile and unpredictable world the education of young people who both understand the contexts in which they are growing up and see the need for engaging with them is a top priority This task falls to social studies education which carries the responsibility for inducting young people into their social world and helping them to see the role they can play within it This is particularly important in East Asia where strong economic growth long held cultural values and diverse political systems create an environment that challenges young people on multiple fronts This book with its team of regional authors shows how different societies in the region are dealing with these challenges and what can be expected from future citizens The book will appeal to policy makers researchers and teachers interested in the current state of social studies education in East Asian societies

Resources in Education ,1994 Learning Progressions in Geography Education Osvaldo Muñoz Solari,Michael Solem,Richard Boehm,2016-07-30 This book informs an international audience of teachers scholars and policymakers about the development of learning progressions for primary and secondary geography education in various countries and regions of the world. The book represents an important contribution to learning progressions research and practice. The different chapters explore how curriculum standards and frameworks in different countries portray progress and sophistication in the learning of geography. The book compares educational systems and how teachers and curriculum developers use the concept of learning progression to guide educational practices. As an approach to educational research, learning progressions offer considerable potential for understanding how children develop understanding of geographic concepts and practices across grade bands and in relation to national geography standards. The book analyzes the general conditions of learning progressions within the context of a globalized world. Important themes are addressed such as knowledge acquisition in formal education, measuring learning progressions in informal settings, learning progressions for one curriculum standard or several standards, conditions to assess progression in the learning of facts, concepts, and skills, and multiple pathways for understanding or learning geography. The contributing authors are experienced scientists in the field from all around the world, giving specific insights into the practices of their countries. The book appeals to K-12 teachers, school administrators, policymakers, researchers in geography education, professors, and lecturers at universities around the world. Research in

Education, 1974 Research on Technology in Social Studies Education John Lee, Adam M. Friedman, 2009-11-01

Despite technology's presence in virtually every public school, its documented familiarity and use by youth outside of school and the wealth of resources it provides for teaching social studies, there has been relatively little empirical research on its effectiveness for the teaching and learning of social studies. In an effort to begin to fill this gap in research literature, this book focuses on research on technology in social studies education. The objectives of this volume are threefold: to describe research frameworks, provide examples of empirical research, and chart a course for future research endeavors. Accordingly, the volume is divided into three overarching sections: research constructs and contexts, research reports, and research reviews. The need for research is particularly acute within the field of social studies and technology. As the primary purpose of social studies is to prepare the young people of today to be the citizens of tomorrow, it is necessary to examine how technology tools impact, improve, and otherwise affect teaching and learning in social studies. Given these circumstances, we have prepared this collection of research conceptualizations, reports, and reviews to achieve three goals: 1. Put forward reports on how research is being conducted in the field. 2. Present findings from well-designed research studies that provide evidence of how specific applications of technology are affecting teaching and learning in social studies. 3. Showcase reviews of research in social studies. It is with this framework that we edited this volume, Research on Technology and Social Studies Education, as an effort to address emerging concerns related to theorizing about the field and reporting research in social studies and technology. The book is divided into four sections. The first section of the book includes three descriptions of research constructs and contexts in social studies and technology. The second section is focused on research reports from studies of student learning in social studies with technology The third section contains research reports on teachers pedagogical considerations for using technology in social studies In the fourth and final section we present work that broadly reviews and critiques research in focused areas of social studies and technology This volume contains twelve chapters each of which focuses on social studies content and pedagogy and how the field is affected and enhanced with technology The volume includes research and theoretical works on various topics including digital history digital video geography technology use in the K 12 social studies classroom and artificial intelligence
