MEDICAL INTERPRETERS & BILINGUAL STAFF

What's the difference?

Description

Certified Medical Interpreter	Qualified Bilingual Staff (QBS)
A bilingual or multilingual person with the appropriate training to provide real-time translations between healthcare professionals and patients or their family members in person, over the phone or via video for complicated communications.	A medical staff member who can communicate directly with patients and families with limited English proficiency for basic patient-clinician communications that don't require a medical interpreter.
Medical interpreters are the gold standard in language services as they are expected to operate in any medical situation including high risk and sensitive scenarios.	In the absence of an interpreter, QBS care for patients directly through specialized medical language training that aligns with the provisions in the Affordable Care Act Section 1557.
- Fluency in English and an additional applicable language - Complete medical interpreter training - Pass medical interpreter certification exam	- Healthcare staff member - Fluency in English and an additional applicable language - Pass Qualified Bilingual Staff assessment
Only two nationally recognized certifying bodies (NBCMI & CCHI). Must complete training, eligibility requirements, and medical interpreter exam.	Each institution can decide how to certify and deploy QBS to best fill language access gaps.
