The Social Dynamics of Labor Market

Inclusion Lena Strindlund, 2020-11-16 Labor market inclusion is a complex assignment that takes place through a dynamic interaction between unemployed individuals from vulnerable groups several authority actors and employers The overall aim of this thesis was to explore the social dynamics of labor market inclusion with a particular focus on integration from the perspectives of employers and authority actors Three empirical studies have been conducted focusing on different perspectives and integration challenges using various forms of qualitative methods and theoretical approaches Study I was a qualitative phenomenographic interview study of employers perspectives on labor market inclusion and intersectoral integration The study showed that employers views are multifaceted and can be categorized as constrained independent and conditional and can be understood through a complex internal relationship between conceived individual workplace and authority related aspects in relation to the themes of trust contribution and support paper I Study II was a two year longitudinal case study of an interorganizational integration project focusing on the authority actors perspectives Through ethnographic fieldwork and a practice theory approach two divergent rationalities an empowerment rationality and a coordinating rationality were identified within the project organization and four central concepts were highlighted communication trust structure and steering contributing to a collapse in integration paper II The dysfunctional group processes were further analyzed with the theory of negative effects of social capital and shadow organizing summarized as three social dynamics insulation homogenization and escalating commitment paper III Study III was a one year longitudinal case study of a municipal intraorganizational integration project focusing on the perspectives of both authority actors and municipal employers This study combined ethnographic field work with the theory of social representations which visualized three different representations among the different professional groups individual employer and political oriented which contributed to creating tensions within the project identified as incomprehension power struggles expectation gaps and distrust paper IV By studying two labor market inclusion projects through shadow organizing the thesis has revealed a complex and dynamic interplay between the various views of the actors involved as well as social processes within the project organizations and organizational aspects referred to as social dynamics These social dynamics constitute the key concepts in this thesis contributing understanding about how integration and organization work within labor market inclusion projects or rather what makes them fail Three social dynamics were identified multiple and conflicting views grouping processes and power struggles Greater knowledge and awareness of these complex and social dynamics of labor market inclusion may contribute to better preparedness when organizing integration projects The results suggest that by identifying and addressing the multiple views characterizing integration projects and not letting incomprehension dominate the destructive social dynamics may not be given as much space or may even be avoided which may stimulate a willingness to integrate

Warren, 2009-11 Ambitious in its historical scope and its broad range of topics Tied to the Great Packing Machine tells the dramatic story of meatpacking's enormous effects on the economics culture and environment of the Midwest over the past century and a half Wilson Warren situates the history of the industry in both its urban and its rural settings moving from the huge stockyards of Chicago and Kansas City to today's smaller meatpacking communities and thus presents a complete portrayal of meatpacking's place within the larger agro-industrial landscape. Writing from the vantage point of twenty-five years of extensive research, Warren analyzes the evolution of the packing industry from its early period dominated by the big terminal markets through the development of new marketing and technical innovations that transformed the ways animals were gathered, slaughtered, and processed, and the final products were distributed. In addition, he concentrates on such cultural impacts as ethnic and racial variations, labor unions, gender issues, and changes in Americans' attitudes toward the ethics of animal slaughter and patterns of meat consumption, and such environmental problems as site-point pollution and microbe contamination, ending with a stimulating discussion of the future of American meatpacking. Providing an excellent and well-referenced analysis within a regional and temporal framework that ensures a fresh perspective, Tied to the Great Packing Machine is a dynamic narrative that contributes to a fuller understanding of the historical context and contemporary concerns of an extremely important industry.

An Introduction to Socio-Finance Jørgen Vitting Andersen, Andrzej Nowak, 2013-12-11 This introductory text is devoted to exposing the underlying nature of price formation in financial markets as a predominantly sociological phenomenon that relates individual decision making to emergent and co-evolving social and financial structures. Two different levels of this sociological influence are considered. First, we examine how price formation results from the social dynamics of interacting individuals where interaction occurs either through the price or by direct communication. Then the same processes are revisited and examined at the level of larger groups of individuals. In this book, models of both levels of socio-finance are presented, and it is shown in particular how complexity theory provides the conceptual and methodological tools needed to understand and describe such phenomena. Accordingly, readers are first given a broad introduction to the standard economic theory of rational financial markets and will come to understand its shortcomings with the help of concrete examples. Complexity theory is then introduced in order to properly account for behavioral decision making and match the observed market dynamics. This book is conceived as a primer for newcomers to the field as well as for practitioners seeking new insights into the field of complexity science applied to socio-economic systems in general and financial markets and price formation in particular.
