ABSTRACT

As social stratification has deepened in contemporary Chinese society, educational capital and academic performance in secondary education have differentiated according to students' socio-economic status. Most of the existing studies on the relationship between family background and children's academic achievement focus on the impact of a student's family background on the final level of education achieved, but education acquisition is a continuous process. Without an analysis of the educational process, it is difficult to understand the process mechanism by which family background affects children's educational opportunity. By using data from the China Education Panel Survey (CEPS), this paper studies the paths and effects of students' socio-economic status on their academic performance. Through modelling latent variables (socio-economic status, academic performance) with fourteen observed variables in a sample size of approximately 7,000 junior high school students around China, this study found that: first, families use their socio-economic resources to provide children with different educational resources and thus influence their academic performance; second, through parents' educational participation and behavioural support, families develop children's learning attitudes and habits, thus influencing their academic achievements. The findings of this paper provide a possible basis for reducing class differences in children's academic achievements and promoting educational equity.

1. INTRODUCTION

Education is fundamental for the development of national quality, and education in childhood is the basis for the cultivation of a country's labour force. The acquisition of education in childhood not only affects individual's own sense of achievement and happiness, but also affects the quality and innovation of a country's labour force at the national level. Education thus affects nation's development ability [1]. In China, as compulsory education has become more widespread and schools have expanded in size, the average education level of residents has been significantly improved. Nevertheless, due to the scarcity of educational resources and their uneven allocation, there is still a great deal of room to improve educational inequality[2]. For this reason, the state council approved the "Outline of the National Medium- and Long-Term Programme for Education Reform and Development" in 2010 and set

"promoting fairness in education and ensure equitable education for the benefit of all" as one of the key strategic goals of national education development.

On the one hand, the fairness of education is rooted in the institutional arrangement, which in turn cushions or even restrains the influence of families' socio-economic status. On the other hand, fair access to education relies on the opportunity and ability to participate in education. Either way, the ultimate outcome is the academic performance of the child within the peer group. In this way, the relationship between family background and access to education has become one of the most important indicators to measure the fairness of education. Research shows that since China's reform and opening up, the role of families' socio-economic status in individual education acquisition has been on the rise and, moreover, its influence has not weakened as school enrolment has expanded[3][4][5][6]. Most of the existing studies on the relationship between family background and children's School Matters RoSusan D. Bartee,M. Christopher Brown,2007 There are four types of capital economic human cultural and social The distribution of capital in home and school settings affects the types of educational outcomes and the quality of lifelong opportunities that individuals are able to enjoy Resource availability and accessibility influence the success levels at which teaching and learning is experienced Capital possession or acquisition impacts the ability to navigate the academic pipeline and to recognize the appropriate tools by which to do so Minimal attempts have been taken to address different perspectives related to economic human cultural and social capital This book identifies the various tenets of capital as having shared similarities and or differences as well as reveals how the distribution of capital impacts educational settings More specifically this book reveals that given the increases in the parental education or the cultural capital of African Americans no significant changes have occurred in the number of years that African American children attend schools This finding remains consistent in terms of the sort of cultural capital that they are able to gain In sum the research concludes that cultural capital does assume a significant role in the transfer of advantages that stem from middle and upper level socioeconomic backgrounds

How the Family Influences Children's Academic Achievement Shui Fong Lam,1996-12-31 Studies the interactive effects of family status and family process on children s academic achievement drawing on research with a group of students in two inner city schools to illustrate how parenting style mediates the influences of family structure and socio economic status on academic performance Concludes that an integrated model is superior to the traditional view of family status and process as independent factors Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Characteristics and Challenges of High Achieving Second-Generation Nigerian Youths in the United States Patricia Ngozi Anekwe,2009-09-11 This study investigated the characteristics and challenges of high achieving second generation Nigerian youths in the United States An increasing number of youths in America s schools are from immigrant backgrounds due to the flow of immigration from Latin America Asia and Africa Given the local and national mandates to improve the academic achievement of all children we cannot afford to leave any group behind Although research on immigrant children from Asia and Latin America and their adaptation and schooling has increased in the last two decades

the educational experiences of Black immigrant children from Africa and the Caribbean have been understudied The scant research on African immigrants lumps all Africans into a homogeneous group despite the different experiences and obvious diversity found within Africa and among African immigrants Using theoretical triangulation from Educational Anthropology cultural ecological theory Sociology social capital and Psychology social cognitive theory the researcher examined the role of parents personal traits and social contexts on the academic experiences of high achieving second generation Nigerian youths The study used surveys in depth interviews of Nigerian youths and parents mothers and a focus group interview of high achieving second generation Nigerian youths to explore the academic experiences of high achieving second generation Nigerian youths to identify factors that determine their educational outcomes It is anticipated that the results of this study will contribute to the literature on immigrant minority and Black students education in the United States High achieving second generation Nigerian youths credited their parents extended family the Nigerian community and their upbringing for their motivation and academic success Nigerian parents were actively engaged with the education of their children both in the traditional realms of school involvement and in the non traditional school engagement Although youths faced the challenges of peer teasing underpreparation for college and parental pressure they devised coping strategies through code switching reevaluating their definition of academic success and increasing determination and effort They also were involved in several extracurricular activities that helped them to create social networks with peers and adults and to break social barriers
