Evidence-Based Policy Ray Pawson, 2006-04-07 In this important new book Ray Pawson examines the recent spread of evidence based policy making across the Western world Few major public initiatives are mounted these days in the absence of a sustained attempt to evaluate them Programmes are tried tried and tried again and researched researched and researched again And yet it is often difficult to know which interventions and which inquiries will withstand the test of time The evident solution going by the name of evidence based policy is to take the longer view Rather than relying on one off studies it is wiser to look to the weight of evidence Accordingly it is now widely agreed the most useful data to support policy decisions will be culled from systematic reviews of all the existing research in particular policy domains This is the consensual starting point for Ray Pawson's latest foray into the world of evaluative research But this is social science after all and harmony prevails only in the first chapter Thereafter Pawson presents a devastating critique of the dominant approach to systematic review namely the meta analytic approach as sponsored by the Cochrane and Campbell collaborations In its place is commended an approach that he terms realist synthesis On this vision the real purpose of systematic review is better to understand programme theory so that policies can be properly targeted and developed to counter an ever changing landscape of social problems The book will be essential reading for all those who loved or loathed the arguments developed in Realistic Evaluation Sage 1997 It offers a complete blueprint for research synthesis supported by detailed illustrations and worked examples from across the policy waterfront It will be of especial interest to policy makers practitioners researchers and students working in health education employment social care criminal justice regeneration and welfare

identity and politics      Accountability Research Hugo Letiche,Ivo De Loo,Carolyn Cordery,Jean-Luc Moriceau,2024-07-12
This book discusses auto ethnographies of accountability undertaken in close collaboration by a multinational group of accounting and organization theory researchers over a period of three years The key assumption underlying the book is that accountability is inherently an identity creating process where the study of account making has to be done participatively with radical openness to the one s being researched as well as to their context That openness we call ethnography The values or assumptions inherent to the practices of account and identity making in a specific context are what auto ethnographies seek to describe and identify These values and assumptions warrant critical ethical reflection and this is what the researchers presented here have tried to provide The chapters in this book all are mini studies of relatedness The scale of examination is intimate the reflections provided by the researchers are mainly methodological This book is of interest to accounting and organization theory students and scholars who believe that accountability can fruitfully be studied through auto ethnography The book extends currently existing views on how accountability can be handled and discharged between researchers and their researched when local intimate settings are studied      Civil Society in China Runya Qiaoan,2021-09-30 Chinese civil society groups have achieved iconic policy advocacy successes in the areas of environmental protection women s rights poverty alleviation and public health This book examines why some groups are successful in policy advocacy within the authoritarian context while others fail A mechanism of cultural resonance is introduced as an innovative theoretical framework to systematically compare interactions between Chinese civil society and the government in different movements It is argued that civil society advocacy results depend largely on whether advocates can achieve cultural resonance with policymakers and the mainstream public through their social performances The effective performance is the one in which advocates employ symbols embraced by the audience policymakers and the public in their actions and framings While many studies have tried to explain the phenomena of successful policy advocacy in China through institutional or organizational factors this book not only contains extensive empirical data based on field research but takes a cultural sociological turn to identify the meaning making process behind advocacy actions Civil Society in China will appeal to students and scholars of sociology political science social work and Chinese and Asian studies more broadly The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license      The Criminological Foundations of Penal Policy Lucia Zedner,Andrew Ashworth,2003 The Criminological Foundations of Penal Policy brings together leading international criminologists to examine the link between the fruits of criminological research and the development of criminal justice policy This volume includes comparative discussions of the United States Germany Australia England and Wales It is divided into four parts Part 1 discusses the theoretical issues surrounding the relationship between public policy and the discipline of criminology Part 2 consists of three essays exploring historical aspects of that relationship Part 3 then examines three distinct areas of penal policy sentencing policing and parole as case studies of the influence of research upon the development of policy Finally in Part 4 which is explicitly devoted to international comparisons there is a consideration of the factors that distinguish research projects that do influence criminal justice policy from those that appear not to The Criminological Foundations of Penal Policy is a volume in honour of Roger Hood Professor of Criminology and Director of the Centre for Criminological Research in the University of Oxford Continuity and Change in Voluntary Action Rose Lindsey, John Mohan, 2018-05-30 There are great expectations of voluntary action in contemporary Britain but limited in depth insight into the level distribution and understanding of what constitutes voluntary activity Drawing on extensive survey data and written accounts of citizen engagement this book charts change and continuity in voluntary activity since 1981 How voluntary action has been defined and measured is considered alongside individuals accounts of their participation and engagement in volunteering over their lifecourses Addressing fundamental questions such as whether the public are cynical about or receptive to calls for greater voluntary action the book considers whether respective government expectations of volunteering can really be fulfilled Is Britain really a shared society or a big society and what is the scope for expansion of voluntary effort This pioneering study combines rich qualitative material from the Mass Observation Archive between 1981 and 2012 and data from many longitudinal and cross sectional social surveys Part of the Third Sector Research Series this book is informed by research undertaken at the Third Sector Research Centre funded by the Economic and Social Research Council and Barrow Cadbury Trust Crime, Genes, Neuroscience and Cyberspace Tim Owen, 2017-09-18 This book applies Owen s unique genetic social framework to the study of crime and criminal behaviour with an emphasis on cybercrime Moving beyond challenges which confront contemporary criminological theorizing such as the stagnation of critical criminology the relativistic nihilism of the cultural turn posthumanism and virtual criminology the author codifies and applies the latest version of the framework to the study of crime both in and out of cyberspace Drawing upon evolutionary psychology behavioural genetics and the philosophy of Heidegger he introduces new terms such as Neuro Agency and notions of Embodied Cognition into criminological theorizing Adopting a soft compatibilist approach to free will and Realist ontology Owen s meta theoretical focus provides a new direction for criminological theorizing in particular in the direction of the conceptualization and prediction of cyber violence Exciting and timely this book will appeal to scholars and advanced students of criminology law sociology social policy psychology philosophy policing and forensic investigation
