L'An v [i.e. cinq] de la révolution algérienne Frantz Fanon, 1962 Transforming Family Jocelyn A. Frelier, 2022-11 One of the lasting legacies of colonialism is the assumption that families should conform to a kinship arrangement built on normative nuclear individuality based models An alternate understanding of familial aspiration is one cultivated across national borders and cultures and beyond the constraints of diasporas This alternate understanding which imagines a category of trans families relies on decolonial and queer intellectual thought to mobilize or transform power across borders In Transforming Family Jocelyn Frelier examines a selection of novels penned by francophone authors in France Morocco and Algeria including Azouz Begag Nina Bouraoui Fouad Laroui Le la Sebbar Le la Slimani and Abdellah Ta a Each novel contributes a unique argument about this alternate understanding of family questioning how family relates to race gender class embodiment and intersectionality Arguing that trans families are always already queer Frelier opens up new spaces of agency for both family units and individuals who seek representation and fulfilling futures The novels analyzed in Transforming Family as well as the families they depict resist classification and delink the legacies of colonialism from contemporary modes of being As a result these novels create trans identities for their protagonists and contribute to a scholarly understanding of the becoming trans of cultural production As international political debates related to migration the family unit and the global migrant crisis surge Frelier destabilizes governmental criteria for the regrouping of families by turning to a set of definitions found in the cultural production of members of the francophone North African diaspora

The Nuremberg Fallacy Eugene Davidson,1998 Available for the first time in paperback The Nuremberg Fallacy examines the inherent shortcomings of the Nuremberg rules of war and the War Crimes Tribunal's impossible expectations. In 1946 the Tribunal declared all aggressive war crimes and crimes against humanity illegal. Yet the period since World War II has witnessed an unprecedented number of armed conflicts. In light of recent crises including those in Rwanda, Bosnia and Serbia and the Middle East, it is clear that the issues explored in The Nuremberg Fallacy are as relevant today as they were at the time of the book's first publication a quarter century ago. In this volume Eugene Davidson continues his investigations begun in The Trial of the Germans (University of Missouri Press), which studied the Nuremberg trials themselves by focusing on five major conflicts since the end of World War II: the Suez crisis of 1956, Algeria's war of independence, Israel's recurring and ongoing battles with its Arab neighbors, complicated and worsened by intervention of the superpowers, the wars in Southeast Asia, and the Soviet Union's suppression of Czechoslovakia and other border states of Eastern Europe. By exploring the roots and ramifications of these five conflicts, Davidson is able to chart the crosscurrents between large and small states, between individual nations and the United Nations, between the rules of Nuremberg and the significantly older rules of self-interest. The result is a thoughtful and thought-provoking study of the dynamics of war and peace in the post-Nuremberg world. The rules of war proclaimed at Nuremberg—observing the flag of truce, prohibiting attacks on surrendered enemies, treating prisoners of war and civilian populations humanely—have become virtually irrelevant in modern guerrilla warfare. If anything, Davidson suggests, conditions have actually become worse than they were before the Nuremberg War Crimes Tribunal. The continuing importance and relevance of The Nuremberg Fallacy is best summarized in the final sentences of Davidson's text: "The survival of a nation cannot be successfully entrusted to simplistic formulae or to principles that reflect unworkable doctrines. No computers have been programmed for the wisdom that remains essential for survival. People still have to provide that from their own inner and outer resources, no matter how far the weapons may seem to have outdistanced them." —Frantz Fanon David Macey, 2012-11-13

Born in Martinique, Frantz Fanon (1925–61) trained as a psychiatrist in Lyon before taking up a post in colonial Algeria. He had already experienced racism as a volunteer in the Free French Army in which he saw combat at the end of the Second World War. In Algeria, Fanon came into contact with the Front de Libération Nationale, whose ruthless struggle for independence was met with exceptional violence from the French forces. He identified closely with the liberation movement, and his political sympathies eventually forced him out of the country, whereupon he became a propagandist and ambassador for the FLN, as well as a seminal anticolonial theorist. David Macey's eloquent Life of Fanon provides a comprehensive account of a complex individual's personal, intellectual, and political development. It is also a richly detailed depiction of postwar French culture. Fanon is revealed as a flawed and passionate humanist, deeply committed to eradicating colonialism. Now updated with new historical material, Frantz Fanon remains the definitive biography of a truly revolutionary thinker.

Conceptualizing the World Helge Jordheim, Erling Sandmo, 2018-12-17 What is and what was the world? Though often treated as interchangeable with the ongoing and inexorable progress of globalization, concepts of world, globe, or earth instead suggest something limited and absolute This innovative and interdisciplinary volume concerns itself with this central paradox that the complex heterogeneous and purportedly transhistorical dynamics of globalization have given rise to the idea and reality of a finite and thus vulnerable world Through studies of illuminating historical moments that range from antiquity to the era of Google Earth each contribution helps to trace the emergence of the world in multitudinous representations practices and human experiences
