Cue-enhancement as a function of task-set Walter C. Cogel,1967 Under flight conditions as well as in other situations judgments of the distances between objects may depend upon a variety of possible cues In this study the hypothesis was tested that the intention to use a particular cue relation would enhance the effectiveness of that particular cue in determining the resulting perception For this purpose a situation was presented in which the apparent depth position of an object in a configuration of objects would differ depending upon which of two possible cue relations size cues were used The results support the conclusion that the perceived depth position of the object differed in the expected directions as a function of the task set The data of the study are discussed with respect to the adjacency principle which states that cue efficiency is determined by the relative adjacency of objects between which the cues occur Although the effect of cue set upon the perception seems to be small compared with that of adjacency it cannot completely be ignored Author
