Psychology Michael W. Eysenck,2004 Unlike typical American texts this book provides an international approach to introductory psychology providing comprehensive and lively coverage of current research from a global perspective including the UK Germany Scandinavia Holland Australia and Canada as well as the USA Inflammation in Psychiatry A., Halaris,B.E., Leonard,2013-02-13 Psychoimmunology is a rapidly maturing area of scientific endeavor that provides a compelling integrative link between the immune system and its response to stress and psychiatric illness Stress initiates pathological changes by activating the immune and endocrine systems Inflammation is at the core of the complex and interactive systems that both contribute to and result from psychopathology. Consequently, inflammation research advances our knowledge of the pathology of depression, schizophrenia, chronic fatigue syndrome, posttraumatic stress disorder, and a host of co-morbid conditions, notably diabetes, cardiovascular disease, and cerebrovascular disease. The possible mechanisms underlying the bidirectionality of co-morbid medical and psychiatric disorders can be viewed as a consequence of inflammatory changes. These emerging novel concepts illustrate how the knowledge of inflammation can enable meaningful integration of psychopathology with physical co-morbidity. The innovative articles in this volume highlight the intricate link between psychiatry and psychoimmunology and underscore the central role of inflammation in furthering our understanding of the pathophysiology underlying mental health and illness.

Coping and Defending Processes of Self-Environment Organization investigates coping and defending within the context of personal social psychology with emphasis on processes of self-environment organization. Topics range from ego and stress to personality theory, family and child rearing. Comprised of 13 chapters, this book begins with a discussion on theories and conceptualizations of ego, paying particular attention to its logical constraints as stated in the neomechanical personal model of rational choice and continuity and discontinuity in states. Subsequent chapters explore coping, defense, and fragmentation as ego processes, immanent value in personality theory problems, and perspectives in investigating ego processes and the interregulation between structures and ego processes. The next section is largely devoted to empirically based findings concerning the development of ego processing, the link between stress and processing, and processing in families. The final chapter describes research aimed at developing and improving coping and defense scales based on personality inventories. This monograph will be of interest to developmentalists, cognitivists, personologists, clinicians, and social psychologists as well as sociologists and perhaps anthropologists.
