Shaughnessy,2017-03-15 Recent discoveries of bronze ritual vessels from ancient China provide the ground for this collection of essays which focus in particular on the nature and patterns of family lineages as seen from these artifacts found in tombs throughout north China Based on careful readings of the inscriptions on the bronze vessels the editor and his eight contributors reconstruct the genealogies kinship structures political identities and relationship networks of leading families and individuals from Bronze Age China. The rich scholarship also contributes to our understanding of the archaeology, chronology, warfare, and legal structures of ancient China. The bronze inscriptions from ancient China are far too important to be left to the specialized archaeologists alone. Professor Shaughnessy and his group of leading practitioners of the arcane art of teasing out the meaning implicit and explicit in these extraordinarily difficult, often only recently discovered inscriptions, allow us to look over their shoulders as they struggle valiantly with some of the richest sources from the earliest stages of Chinese intellectual ethnography and literary culture. This volume provides the kind of hands-on and well-documented exploratory philology that opens up a wide field of general discussion concerning an early formative stage of Chinese civilization. Christoph Harbsmeier, Professor Emeritus of Chinese University of Oslo. Foreign Acquisitions

Newsletter, 1976. Demystifying China's Innovation Machine. Marina Yue Zhang, Mark Dodgson, David Gann, 2022. China's extraordinary economic development is explained in large part by the way it innovates. Contrary to widely held views, China's innovation machine is not created and controlled by an all-powerful government. Instead, it is a complex interdependent system composed of various elements involving bottom-up innovation driven by innovators and entrepreneurs and highly pragmatic and adaptive top-down policy. Using case studies of leading firms and industries along with statistics and policy analysis, this book argues that China's innovation machine is similar to a natural ecosystem. Innovations in technology, organization, and business models resemble genetic mutations which are initially random, self-serving, and isolated, but the best fitting are selected by the market, and their impacts are amplified by the innovation machine. This machine draws on China's multitude of manufacturers, supply chains, innovation clusters, and digitally literate population connected through super-sized digital platforms. China's innovation suffers from a lack of basic research and reliance upon certain critical technologies from overseas, yet its scale, size, and scope diversity possess attributes that make it self-correcting and stronger in the face of challenges. China's innovation machine is most effective in a policy environment where the market prevails; policy intervention plays a significant role when market mechanisms are premature or fail. The future success of China's innovation will depend on continuing policy pragmatism, mass innovation, and entrepreneurship, and the development of the new Chinese history has developed rapidly in recent decades and has seen increased exploration of new topics and innovative approaches. Resulting from a special issue of Modern Chinese History Studies this volume is devoted to showcasing the healthy development of Chinese modern history studies and has already been revised twice in the original language. This three volume set exhibits major achievements in the study of modern Chinese history and shows how the role of history has been in debate, transformation and re-evaluation throughout this tortuous yet prosperous period. This volume investigates the critical movements such as the Taiping Heavenly Kingdom Movement and the Chinese People's War of Resistance against Japanese aggression that contribute to the establishment of the People's Republic of China. In addition, it includes valuable summaries of various perspectives in modern Chinese history studies such as the translation of overseas studies and pioneering topics that historians have examined between 2009 and 2019. This book will benefit scholars and students of Chinese history, especially those who are interested in modern Chinese history.

Claiming the International Arlene B. Tickner, David L. Blaney, 2013-08-15. This book explores the possibilities of alternative worldings beyond those authorized by the disciplinary norms and customs of International Relations. In response to the boundary drawing practices of IR that privilege the historical experience and scholarly folkways of the West, the contributors examine the limits of even critical practice within the discipline, investigate alternative archives from India, the Caribbean, the steppes of Eurasia, the Andes, China, Japan, and Southeast Asia that offer different understandings of proper rule, the relationality of identities and politics, notions of freedom and imaginations of layers of sovereignty, and demonstrate distinct modes of writing and inquiry. In doing so, the book also speaks about different possibilities for IR and for inquiry without it.

Social Disciplining and Civilising Processes in China Thomas Heberer, 2023-08-11. This book argues that a major part of the Chinese government's road map formulated in 2017 to modernise China comprehensively by 2049 is the process of social disciplining. It contends that the Chinese state sees that modernisation and modernity encompass not only economic and political administrative change but are also related to the organisation of society in general and the disciplining of this society and its individuals to create people with modernised minds and behaviour, and that moreover the Chinese state is aspiring to a modernity with Chinese characteristics. The question of modernising by disciplining was extensively dealt with in the twentieth century by leading Western social scientists including Max Weber, Norbert Elias, and Michel Foucault, who argued that disciplining, extending from external coercion towards the internalisation of restraints, is indispensable for achieving social order and thereby for civilisation, but defined from a European perspective in relation to developments in Europe. This book therefore not only discusses the Chinese experience of social disciplining but also, by looking at a non-Western society, identifies universal tendencies of societal change and social disciplining and separates them from particular occurrences.
