Journal of the United States Artillery ,1943 The British Navy in Battle Arthur H. Pollen,1919 THE BRITISH NAVY IN BATTLE CHAPTER I A Greeting by Way of Dedication Xmas 1915 To the Admirals Captains Officers and Men of the Royal

Navy and of the Royal Naval Reserve To the men of the merchant service and the landsmen who have volunteered for work afloat To all who are serving or fighting for their country at sea To all naval officers who are serving much against their will on land Greetings good wishes and gratitude from all landsmen We do not wish you a Merry Christmas for to none of us neither to you at sea nor to us on land can Christmas be a merry season now Nor amid so much misery and sorrow does it seem at first sight reasonable to carry the conventional phrase further and wish you a Happy New Year But happiness is a different thing from merriment In the strictest sense of the word you are happy in your great task and we doubly and trebly happy in the security that your great duties so finely discharged confer So after all it is a Happy New Year that we wish you If you could have your wish you of the Grand Fleet well we can guess what it would be It is that the war would so shape itself as to force the enemy fleet out and make it put its past work and its once high hopes to the test against the power which you command and use with all the skill your long vigil and faithful service have made so singly yours to day And in one sense and for your sakes because your glory would be somehow lessened if it did not happen we too could wish that this could happen But we wish it only because you do Although you do not grumble though we hear no fretful word we realize how wearing and how wearying your ceaseless watch must be It is a watchfulness that could not be what it is unless you hoped and indeed more than hoped expected that the enemy must early or late prove your readiness to meet him either seeking you or letting you find him in a High Seas fight of ship to ship and man to man We like you look forward to such a time with no misgiving as to the result though unlike you we dread the price in noble lives and gallant ships that even an overwhelming victory may cost Your hopes and expectation for this dreadful but glorious end to all your work do not date from August eighteen months ago When as little boys you went to the Britannia you went drawn there by the magic of the sea It was not the sea that carries the argosies of fabled wealth it was not the sea of yachts and pleasure boats It was the sea that had been ruled so proudly by your fathers that drew you And you as the youngest of the race went to it as the heirs to a stern and noble heritage So almost from the nursery have you been vowed to a life of hardship and of self denial of peril and of poverty a fitting apprenticeship for those who were destined to bear themselves so nobly in the day of strain and battle To the mission confided to you in boyhood you have been true in youth and true in manhood So that when war came it was not war that surprised you but you that surprised war To be continue in this ebook

The Observer's Guide to Planetary Motion

Dominic Ford, 2014-05-14 To the naked eye the most evident defining feature of the planets is their motion across the night sky It was this motion that allowed ancient civilizations to single them out as different from fixed stars The Observer's Guide to Planetary Motion takes each planet and its moons if it has them in turn and describes how the geometry of the Solar System gives rise to its observed motions Although the motions of the planets may be described as simple elliptical orbits around the Sun we have to observe them from a particular vantage point the Earth which spins daily on its axis and circles around the Sun each year The motions of the planets as observed relative to this spinning observatory take on more complicated patterns Periodically objects become prominent in the night sky for a few weeks or months while at other times they pass too close to the Sun to be observed The Observer's Guide to Planetary Motion provides accurate tables of the best time for observing each planet together with other notable events in their orbits helping amateur astronomers plan when and what to observe Uniquely each of the chapters includes extensive explanatory text relating the events listed to the physical geometry of the Solar System Along the way many questions are answered Why does Mars take over two years between apparitions the times when it is visible from Earth in the night sky while Uranus and Neptune take almost exactly a year Why do planets appear higher in the night sky when they're visible in the winter months Why do Saturn's rings appear to open and close every 15 years This book places seemingly disparate astronomical events into an understandable three dimensional structure enabling an appreciation that for example very good apparitions of Mars come around roughly every 15 years and that those in 2018 and 2035 will be nearly as good as that seen in 2003 Events are listed for the time period 2010-2030 and in the case of rarer events such as eclipses and apparitions of Mars even longer time periods are covered A short closing chapter describes the seasonal appearance of deep sky objects which follow an annual cycle as a result of Earth's orbital motion around the Sun
