The Ocean Frontier:

The Ocean Frontier Adam Starchild, 2002-09-01 These are ideas that sound like they were snipped from the scenario of one of the new breed of high tech science fiction films A quiet residential neighborhood of homes shops and tree lined open spaces is towed into place and linked up to a town floating off the coast A community college is lowered onto caissons in the harbor An entire petrochemical production complex including apartments and recreational facilities for its workers an airstrip and a small shopping area is erected on a platform floating in the middle of the sea The structural and engineering technique for such grandiose ventures is already a reality So are the economic social and regulatory pressures which may soon make the use of floating platforms and artificial islands a necessity for urban and industrial expansion The oceans hold out an exciting challenge for we are beginning our exploitation of the ocean s fabulous riches with a consciousness of the need for conservation and environmental protection As pragmatic as such a program may appear its most important and long reaching benefits will surely be socio psychological rather than simply economic When in history has a people who have staked out a claim or wrested a living from the virgin wilderness feared the future or become an indolent or dependent people The answer is never It is only when there are no frontiers to cross that initiative and the courage to face real choices vanishes Adam Starchild is the author of numerous business books editor of an anthology of Russian science fiction a member of the Extropy Institute and a life member of the Lighter Than Air Society the World Future Society and the Libertarian Futurist Society His personal website is at <http://www.adamstarchild.com> Ocean Frontiers United States. Politics of COVID-19 John Nguyet Erni, Ted Striphas, 2022-08-22 COVID 19 isn't simply a viral pathogen nor is it strictly speaking the trigger of a global pandemic. Since the outbreak began in late 2019, an outpouring of clinical and scientific research together with an array of public health initiatives has sought to understand, mitigate or even eradicate the virus. This book represents a snapshot of critical responses by researchers from 10 countries and 4 continents in a collective effort to explore how Cultural Studies can contribute to our struggle to persevere in a no-normal horizon with no clear end in sight. Together, the essays address important questions at the intersection of culture, power, politics and public health. What are the possible outlines for the panic pandemic complex? How has the pandemic been endowed with meanings and affective registers often at the tipping points where existing social relations and medical understanding were being rapidly displaced by new ones? How can societies discover ways of living with, through and against COVID that do not simply reproduce existing hierarchies and power relations? The 30 essays comprising this collection, along with the editors' introduction, explore the formative period of the COVID pandemic from mid 2020 to mid 2021. They are grouped into three sections: Racializations, Media, Data and Fragments of the Popular, and Unknowing the Pandemic, themes that animate but do not exhaust the complex cultural and political life of COVID 19 with respect to identity, technology and epistemology. No doubt, readers will chart their own pathway as the pandemic continues to rage on, based on their own unique circumstances. This book provides critical intellectual guideposts for the way forward toward an uncertain future without guarantees. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Cultural Studies.

Understanding ocean ridges, a new frontier for science and development Philip Weaver, David Billett, Pei-Yuan Qian, Jozee Sarrazin, 2023-06-30 The U.S. Global Ocean Science Program, 1987 Resolved that the United States Federal Government Should Establish an Ocean Policy Substantially Increasing Protection of Marine Natural Resources Julie Jennings, 2004 Entangled Waterscapes in Asia, 2025-02-20

This volume, edited by Kwai Cheung Lo and Hung Chiung Li, explores the notion of entangled waterscape to reflect beyond the traditional continental perspectives. It understands Asia and beyond through the multifaceted interplay of history, economics, politics, culture and ecological concerns. The conceptualization of waterscape echoes contemporary geopolitical tensions, economic interdependencies, military strategies and historical cultural dynamics, offering fresh viewpoints on rethinking cultural politics and engaging with Anthropocene concerns and ecological imperatives. The volume reverberates with the discourses of the Global South, complicating prevailing worldviews and ideological underpinnings and thereby prompts a re-evaluation of the concept of Asia.

Rethinking Innovation for a Sustainable Ocean Economy OECD, 2019-02-14 This new OECD report on the ocean economy emphasises the growing importance of science and technologies in improving the sustainable economic development of our seas and oceans. Marine ecosystems sit at the heart of many of the world's global challenges: food, medicines, new sources of clean energy. The Routledge Handbook of Ocean Space Kimberley Peters, Jon Anderson, Andrew Davies, Philip Steinberg, 2022-07-29 Invisible as the seas and oceans may be for so many of us life as we know it is almost always connected to and constituted by activities and occurrences that take place in on and under our oceans The Routledge Handbook of Ocean Space provides a first port of call for scholars engaging in the oceanic turn in the social sciences offering a comprehensive summary of existing trends in making sense of our water worlds alongside new agenda setting insights into the relationships between society and the seas around us Accordingly this ambitious text not only attends to a growing interest in our oceans past and present it is also situated in a broader spatial turn across the social sciences that seeks to account for how space and place are imbricated in socio cultural and political life Through six clearly structured and wide ranging sections The Routledge Handbook of Ocean Space examines and interrogates how the oceans are environmental historical social cultural political legal and economic spaces and also zones where national and international security comes into question With a foreword and introduction authored by some of the leading scholars researching and writing about ocean spaces alongside 31 further carefully crafted chapters from established as well as early career academics this book provides both an accessible guide to the subject and a cutting edge collection of critical ideas and questions shaping the social sciences today This handbook brings together the key debates defining the field in one volume appealing to a wide cross disciplinary social science and humanities audience Moreover drawing on a range of international examples from a global collective of authors this book promises to be the benchmark publication for those interested in ocean spaces past and present Indeed as the seas and oceans continue to capture world wide attention and the social sciences continue their seaward turn The Routledge Handbook of Ocean Space will provide an invaluable resource that reveals how our world is a water world
