

Diagram of the human eye showing internal structures.

The eye is a complex organ that allows us to see. It is made up of several parts, including the cornea, iris, lens, and retina. The cornea is the clear, outer layer of the eye. The iris is the colored part of the eye. The lens is a clear, bumpy structure that helps focus light. The retina is the back of the eye where light is converted into signals that the brain can understand.

Light enters the eye through the cornea and passes through the iris and lens. It then hits the retina, which is covered in light-sensitive cells. These cells send signals to the brain through the optic nerve. The brain then interprets these signals as what we see.

Diagram of the Earth showing continents and oceans.

The Earth is a large, round planet. It is covered in water and land. The land is divided into continents and islands. The water is divided into oceans and seas. The Earth has a thin layer of air around it called the atmosphere. The atmosphere protects us from the sun's harmful rays. The Earth also has a magnetic field that protects us from solar wind.

The human body is a complex machine. It is made up of many different parts, including the brain, heart, lungs, and muscles. Each part has a specific function. The brain controls everything we do. The heart pumps blood around the body. The lungs take in oxygen and get rid of carbon dioxide. The muscles help us move.

Our bodies are designed to survive. We have senses that help us know what is going on around us. We have a strong immune system to fight off diseases. We have a way to heal ourselves when we get hurt. Our bodies are amazing!
