Medieval Hunting Richard Almond,2011-10-24 Hunting was a major economic and leisure activity throughout the later European Middle Ages but while aristocratic practices have featured in studies of romantic and narrative literature hunting in its wider sense across the social spectrum and with attendant male and female roles has largely been ignored by modern medieval historians Richard Almond s study brings vividly to life the universality and centrality of hunting to medieval societies both as an economic necessity and as an expression of medieval humanity s almost atavistic sense of oneness with nature Medieval Hunting dispels some of the myths and misunderstandings surrounding hunting including the persistent views that it was exclusively an aristocratic male pursuit Using a wide variety of contemporary textual and art historical evidence Richard Almond shows that hunting including fishing and poaching was enjoyed by women as well as men

Woodcock Status Report, 1970 Eldon Ralph Clark,1971 Information on the current status and population trends of the American woodcock is provided by annual singing ground surveys over much of the species breeding range and a wing collection survey in the eastern United States the 1970 singing ground survey showed no change in the breeding population index for the Eastern region a 3 12% increase for the Western region and a 2 11% increase rangewide This index is based on 752 comparable survey routes all randomly selected 35% more than the 568 routes used in 1969 The wing collection survey for the 1969 70 season suggested a decline of 7 03% in productivity the previous summer a slight decline in the average daily bag per hunter and a sharper drop of 11 1% in the average seasonal bag There is evidence that the woodcock harvest and the number of hunters participating increased over previous years with the 1969 70 harvest exceeding 1 1 million birds Woodcock research is increasing with the present emphasis directed to banding on breeding grounds A New Plantation
