Winning the Next War Stephen Peter Rosen, 2018-07-05 How and when do military innovations take place Do they proceed differently during times of peace and times of war In Winning the Next War Stephen Peter Rosen argues that armies and navies are not forever doomed to fight the last war Rather they are able to respond to shifts in the international strategic situation He also discusses the changing relationship between the civilian innovator and the military bureaucrat In peacetime Rosen finds innovation has been the product of analysis and the politics of military promotion in a process that has slowly but successfully built military capabilities critical to American military success In wartime by contrast innovation has been constrained by the fog of war and the urgency of combat needs Rosen draws his principal evidence from U S military policy between 1905 and 1960 though he also discusses the British army s experience with the battle tank during World War I

The Next War in the Air Brett Holman, 2016-02-17 In the early twentieth century the new technology of flight changed warfare irrevocably not only on the battlefield but also on the home front As prophesied before 1914 Britain in the First World War was effectively no longer an island with its cities attacked by Zeppelin airships and Gotha bombers in one of the first strategic bombing campaigns Drawing on prewar ideas about the fragility of modern industrial civilization some writers now began to argue that the main strategic risk to Britain was not invasion or blockade but the possibility of a sudden and intense aerial bombardment of London and other cities which would cause tremendous destruction and massive casualties The nation would be shattered in a matter of days or weeks before it could fully mobilize for war Defeat decline and perhaps even extinction would follow This theory of the knock out blow from the air solidified into a consensus during the 1920s and by the 1930s had largely become an orthodoxy accepted by pacifists and militarists alike But the devastation feared in 1938 during the Munich Crisis when gas masks were distributed and hundreds of thousands fled London was far in excess of the damage

wrought by the Luftwaffe during the Blitz in 1940 and 1941 as terrible as that was The knock out blow then was a myth But it was a myth with consequences For the first time The Next War in the Air reconstructs the concept of the knock out blow as it was articulated in the public sphere the reasons why it came to be so widely accepted by both experts and non experts and the way it shaped the responses of the British public to some of the great issues facing them in the 1930s from pacifism to fascism Drawing on both archival documents and fictional and non fictional publications from the period between 1908 when aviation was first perceived as a threat to British security and 1941 when the Blitz ended and it became clear that no knock out blow was coming The Next War in the Air provides a fascinating insight into the origins and evolution of this important cultural and intellectual phenomenon Britain's fear of the bomber Stop the Next War Now Medea Benjamin, Jodie Evans, 2010-11-12 Violence begets violence so believes the majority of people around the world who have stood up in protest against war Stop the Next War Now is a reflective look and call to action to end violence by acclaimed peace activists experts and visionaries including Eve Ensler Barbara Lee Arianna Huffington Janeane Garafalo Nancy Pelosi Maxine Hong Kingston and many more The book shares expert insight on the issues and powers that be that encourage war including the media politicians global militarization and the pending scarcity of natural resources A powerful smart and passionate work this book aims to educate and reflect on the effectiveness of peace movement activities and offer hope through shared ideas action steps and checklists to transform a culture of violence to a culture of peace How can people humanize each other ask the authors and act as responsible global citizens With vitality joy and a dash of CODEPINK style humor Stop the Next War Now insists that the time is ripe for the first ever global movement to put an end to war and tells readers what they can do about it

Germany and the Next War Friedrich von Bernhardi, 2019-11-20 In Germany and the Next War Friedrich von Bernhardi presents a compelling discourse on military strategy and the geopolitical landscape of Europe leading up to World War I The text emerges from the context of a rapidly industrializing continent marked by intense national competition and militarism Bernhardi employs a persuasive and often polemical style articulating a vision for Germany's place in a world defined by conflict He advocates for a proactive military stance and outlines the perceived threats from rival powers articulating a complex interplay between national identity and military necessity while simultaneously reflecting on the philosophical underpinnings of war itself Friedrich von Bernhardi a German general and military theorist was deeply shaped by the events preceding the Great War His extensive military experience and his position within the Prussian military elite led him to critically examine Germany's military doctrine and strategy His belief in the inevitability of conflict and the supremacy of military power as a means to achieve national aims propelled him to write this provocative work which has garnered both admiration and critique from contemporaries and historians alike Germany and the Next War is an essential read for scholars and enthusiasts of military history offering profound insights into the mindsets that guided nations towards the tumult of World War I Bernhardi's arguments resonate with broader questions of nationalism strategy and the philosophy of war making it a vital contribution to the understanding of modern military thought Readers looking to comprehend the historical roots of conflict in Europe will find this text indispensable Don't Wait for the Next War Wesley K. Clark, 2014-10-07

With the end of the Cold War came not the end of history but the end of America's sense of its strategic purpose in the world Then after a decade of drift the US was violently dragged back into international conflict Its armed forces responded magnificently but its leaders' objectives were substantially flawed We fought the wrong war twice for reasons that were opaque and few American citizens understood the cause for which their sons and daughters were fighting and dying War is a poor substitute for strategic vision and decisions made in the heat of imminent conflict are often limited by the emotions of the moment In Don't Wait for the Next War Wesley K. Clark a retired four star general of the US army and former Democratic candidate for president presents a compelling argument for continued American global leadership and the basis on which it can succeed a new American strategy America needs both new power and deeper perspective The platform for American leadership is to use America's energy resources to spark sustainable economic growth building new strength to deal with pressing domestic issues like the deficit as well as the longer term challenges to US security terrorism cyber threats the next financial crisis China's rising power and climate change Such a strategy is not only achievable but essential and it is urgently needed This is the true test of American leadership for the next two decades but it must start now so America has the power and vision to deal with the acute crises that will inevitably come in the Mideast Europe or Asia Who Will Fight the Next War? Martin Binkin, 2010-12-01 The Persian Gulf conflict was the first major combat test for US military forces since the nation ended conscription two decades ago As hundreds of thousands of American troops were dispatched to the Middle East the nation realized seemingly for the first time that the composition of its armed forces was far removed from any that the nation had previously sent to war The deployment of unprecedented proportions of minorities and women and the prominent role of reserves and national guard troops aroused considerable interest widespread debate and some worry The prospect that African Americans could bear a disproportionate share of military casualties generated a socially diverse debate that threatened to reopen old racial scars the reality that American women were exposed to perils from which by long and deep tradition they had previously been shielded inspired calls for them to be admitted to combat specialties and controversy surrounding the readiness of the Army's combat reserves led to an internecine struggle over the future shape of the US Army In this book Martin Binkin addresses each of these issues in order to provide a better understanding of the composition of America's fighting forces to prompt an assessment of attitudes toward who should fight in future wars and to delineate the choices for influencing the social distribution of peril Binkin argues that the time for public involvement is now while the memories of the Persian Gulf conflict are still reasonably fresh and while a fundamental rethinking of the post cold war military is under way Germany and the Next War (WWI Centenary Series) Friedrich Von Bernhardi, 2014-12-12 Our science our literature and the warlike achievements of our past have made me proudly conscious of belonging to a great civilized nation which in spite of all the weakness and mistakes of bygone days must and assuredly will win a glorious future and it is out of the fulness of my German heart that I have recorded my convictions I believe that thus I shall most effectually rouse the national feeling in my readers hearts and strengthen the national purpose This book is part of the World War One Centenary series creating collating and reprinting new and old works of poetry fiction autobiography and analysis The series forms a commemorative tribute to mark the passing of one of the world s bloodiest wars offering new perspectives on this tragic yet fascinating period of human history Each publication also includes brand new introductory essays and a timeline to help the reader place the work in its historical context

Who Will Fight the Next War? Martin Binkin,1993 In this book Martin Binkin addresses current issues and provides a better understanding of the composition of America s fighting forces to prompt an assessment of attitudes toward who should fight in future wars and to delineate the choices for influencing the social distribution of peril

Our War Too Margaret Paton-Walsh,2002 In the late 1930s a number of American women especially those allied with various peace and isolationist groups protested against the nation s entry into World War II While their story is fairly well known Margaret Paton Walsh reveals a far less familiar story of women who fervently felt that American intervention was absolutely necessary Paton Walsh recounts how the United States became involved in the war but does so through the eyes of American women who faced it as a necessary evil Covering the period between 1935 and 1941 she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women s organizations informal women s networks and even male dominated lobbying groups In the Great Debate over whether America should enter the war some women favored aid to the Allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct U S involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a Nazi victory Paton Walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day Elizabeth Cutter Morrow whose son in law Charles Lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the Neutrality Acts to allow the sale of arms to the Allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast Soon other women joined this debate Esther Brunauer of the AAUW journalist Dorothy Thompson and organizations like the League of Women Voters and National Women s Trade Union League broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate American aid for the Allied cause Focusing on the conflict in Europe Paton Walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the Lend Lease program for America s entry into the war but supported it nevertheless By late 1941 the Women s Division of the Fight for Freedom Committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to Britain to keep American boys out of battle this organization supported direct American involvement in the war as a means of stopping Nazi oppression While most historians have focused on women s pacifism Paton Walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs Our War Too is a story of American women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace It expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on American public opinion over the build up to the war The Eagle Magazine ,1925
