anything I know now that it was due to all that I went through as a child I wasn't happy I was used to doing what needed to be done like a mother taking care of her children homework cooking keeping the kids safe and showing them that life has many things to offer Never allowing Sabrina to be Sabrina I was lost I didn't know who Sabrina was I took care of my three younger siblings as if I was their mother then at sixteen years old I had my own child the first of my five children I just wanted to be whole and true to myself and be able to help anyone I could I knew I had something to give but I needed to be complete from within and I've reached that point Writing Only the Strong Survive has helped me in many ways and I want to help as many people as I can to understand that they are not alone
