The Of English Antiques 1700 1830:

The Book of English Antiques, 1700-1830 Donald Wintersgill, 1975 English Antiques, 1700-1830 Donald Wintersgill, 1975-01-01 The Eighteenth Century Pat Rogers, 2020-01-08 The aim of this book originally published in 1978 is to make the reading of literary classics such as Gulliver s Travels Robinson Crusoe Tom Jones The Beggar s Opera and Tristram Shandy an even richer experience by giving them an intelligible place in history The context is seen not as a vague backcloth but as a living fabric of ideas and events which animate Augustan literature The authors cover the achievements of men like Hume Walpole Chippendale Newton and Reynolds who are often merely names to the literary student and show how writers were affected by exciting developments in psychology aesthetics medicine and other fields As a whole the book shows this period to have been an active questing and complex era whose literary masterpieces emanate from a rich and diverse culture Catalog of the Avery Memorial Architectural Library of Columbia University. 2d ed., enl Avery Library, 1968 The Magazine Antiques , 1982-10 Magazine Antiques , 1929 Country House Brewing in England, 1500-1900 Pamela Sambrook, 1996-07-01 Until the 18th century or even later beer was the staple drink of most men and women at all levels of society Tea and coffee were expensive luxuries while water might well carry disease To supply the needs of both owners and servants every country house with an accessible source of water had a brewhouse usually close at hand Although many of the brewhouses still stand in some cases with the original brewing vessels as at Lacock and Charlecote their habitual conversion to other uses has allowed them to be ignored Yet they are distinctive buildings as much part of a country house as an ice house or stables which need both to be recognized and preserved The scale of brewing in country houses which went on to a surprisingly late date in the 19th century with odd survivals such as Hickleton in Yorkshire in the 20th was often considerable if small besides that of commercial brewing Copious records for both brewing and consumption exist Pamela Sambrook describes the brewing equipment such as coppers mash tuns underbacks and coolers the types of beers brewed from strong ale to small beer and how they were kept and the brewers themselves their skills and attitudes English Country House Brewing 1500 1900 shows the role beer played in the life of the country house with beer allowances and beer money an integral part of servants rewards Generous allowances were made for arduous tasks such as harvesting For celebrations such as the heir s coming of age extra strong ale was provided This book which is heavily illustrated is an important and original contribution to architectural brewing and social history Antiques , 1928 Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1977 Modern Antiques Barrett Kalter, 2011-11-21 The recovery and reinvention of the past were fundamental to the conception of the modern in England during the long eighteenth century Scholars then forged connections between linear time and empirical evidence that transformed historical consciousness Chronologers textual critics and antiquaries constructed the notion of a material past which spread through the cultures of print and consumption to a broader public offering powerful and for that reason contested ways of perceiving temporality and change the historicity of objects and the relation between fact and imagination. But even as these innovative ideas won acceptance they also generated rival forms of historical meaning. The regular progression of chronological time accentuated the deviance of anachronism and ephemerality while the opposition of unique artifacts to ubiquitous commodities exoticized things that straddled this divide. Inspired by the authentic products as well as the anomalous by products of contemporary scholarship, writers, craftsmen and shoppers appropriated the past to create nostalgic and ironic alternatives to their own moment. Barrett Kalter explores the history of these modern antiques including Dryden's translation of Virgil, modernizations of The Canterbury Tales, Gray's Gothic wallpaper and Walpole's Strawberry Hill. Though grounded in the ancient and medieval eras, these works uncannily addressed the controversies about monarchy, nationhood, commerce and specialized knowledge that defined the present for the English eighteenth century. Bringing together literary criticism, historiography, material culture studies and book history, Kalter argues that the proliferation of modern antiques in the period reveals modernity's paradoxical emergence out of encounters with the past.

The Afterlife of Used Things Ariane Fennetaux, Amélie Junqua, Sophie Vasset, 2014-10-03 Recycling is not a concept that is usually applied to the eighteenth century. The environment may not have existed as a notion then, yet practices of re-use and transformation obviously shaped the early modern world. Still, this period of booming commerce and exchange was also marked by scarcity and want. This book reveals the fascinating variety and ingenuity of recycling processes that may be observed in the commerce, crafts, literature and medicine of the eighteenth century. Recycling is used as a thought-provoking means to revisit subjects such as consumption, the new science or novel writing and cast them in a new light where the waste of some becomes the luxury of others: clothes worn to rags are turned into paper and into books and scientific breakthroughs are carried out in old kitchen pans.

The Eighteenth Century, 1978 Antiques and Collectibles Linda Campbell Franklin, 1978 The Tastemakers Diana Davis, 2020-07-07 An examination of the development, role and influence of the British decorative art dealers who invented an Anglo-Gallic style for elite interiors. In this volume, Diana Davis demonstrates how London dealers invented a new and visually splendid decorative style that combined the contrasting tastes of two nations. Departing from the conventional narrative that depicts dealers as purveyors of antiquarianism, Davis repositions them as innovators who were key to transforming old art objects from ancient Rome and France into cherished antiques and equally as creators of new and modified French-inspired furniture, bronze work and porcelain. The resulting old, new and reconfigured objects merged aristocratic French eighteenth-century taste with nineteenth-century British preference and they were prized by collectors who displayed them side by side in palatial interiors of the period. The Tastemakers analyzes dealer-made furnishings from the nineteenth-century patron's perspective and in the context of the interiors for which they were created, contending that early dealers deliberately formulated a new aesthetic with its own objects language and value. Davis examines a wide variety of documents to piece together the shadowy world of these dealers who emerge center stage as a

The Georgian London Town House Kate Retford, Susanna Avery-Quash, 2019-03-07

For every great country house of the Georgian period there was usually also a town house Chatsworth for example the home of the Devonshires has officially been recognised as one of the country's favourite national treasures but most of its visitors know little of Devonshire House which the family once owned in the capital In part this is because town houses were often leased rather than being passed down through generations as country estates were But most crucially many London town houses including Devonshire House no longer exist having been demolished in the early twentieth century This book seeks to place centre stage the hugely important yet hitherto overlooked town houses of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries exploring the prime position they once occupied in the lives of families and the nation as a whole It explores the owners how they furnished and used these properties and how their houses were judged by the various types of visitor who gained access

Beyond the Grand Tour Rosemary Sweet, Gerrit Verhoeven, Sarah Goldsmith, 2017-02-17 Travel in early modern Europe is frequently represented as synonymous with the institution of the Grand Tour a journey undertaken by elite young males from northern Europe to the centres of the arts and antiquity in Italy Taking a somewhat different perspective this volume builds upon recent research that pushes beyond this narrow orthodoxy and which decentres Italy as the ultimate destination of European travellers Instead it explores a much broader pattern of travel undertaken by people of varied backgrounds and with divergent motives for travelling By tapping into current reactions against the reification of the Grand Tour as a unique and distinctive practice this volume represents an important contribution to the ongoing process of resituating the Grand Tour as part of a wider context of travel and topographical writing Focusing upon practices of travel in northern and western Europe rather than in Italy particularly in Britain the Low Countries and Germany the essays in this collection highlight how itineraries continually evolved in response to changing political economic and intellectual contexts In so doing the reasons for travel in northern Europe are subjected to a similar level of detailed analysis as has previously only been directed on Italy By doing this the volume demonstrates the variety of travel experiences including the many shorter journeys made for pleasure health education and business undertaken by travellers of varying age and background across the period In this way the volume brings to the fore the experiences of varied categories of traveller from children to businessmen which have traditionally been largely invisible in the historiography of travel
