The Concept Of Time:

The Concept of Time Martin Heidegger, 2011-05-12 The Concept of Time presents Heidegger's so called Dilthey review widely considered the first draft of his celebrated masterpiece Being and Time Here Heidegger reveals his deep commitment to Wilhelm Dilthey and Count Yorck von Wartenburg He agrees with them that historicity must be at the centre of the new philosophy to come However he also argues for an ontological approach to history From this ontological turn he develops the so called categories of Dasein This work demonstrates Heidegger's indebtedness to Yorck and Dilthey and gives further evidence to the view that thought about history is the germ cell of Being and Time However it also shows that Heidegger's commitment to Dilthey was not without reservations and that his analysis of Dasein actually employs Husserl's phenomenology The work reopens the question of history in a broader sense as Heidegger struggles to thematize history without aligning it with world historical events The text also provides a concise and readable summary of the main themes of Being and Time and as such is an ideal companion to that text The Concept of Time in Early Twentieth-Century

Philosophy Flavia Santoianni, 2015-11-26 This book presents a collection of authoritative contributions on the concept of time in early twentieth century philosophy It is structured in the form of a thematic atlas each section is accompanied by relevant elementary logic maps that reproduce in a spatial form the directionalities arguments and or discourses reported on in the text The book is divided into three main sections the first of which covers phenomenology and the perception of time by analyzing the works of Bergson Husserl Sartre Merleau Ponty Deleuze Guattari and Derrida The second section focuses on the language and conceptualization of time examining the works of Cassirer Wittgenstein Heidegger Lacan Ricoeur and Foucault while the last section addresses the science and logic of time as they appear in the works of Guillaume Einstein Reichenbach Prigogine and Barbour The purpose of the book is threefold to provide readers with a comprehensive overview of the concept of time in early twentieth century philosophy to show how conceptual reasoning can be supported by accompanying linguistic and spatial representations and to stimulate novel research in the humanistic field concerning the complex role of graphic representations in the comprehension of concepts History of the Concept of Time

Martin Heidegger, 2009-01-13 Heidegger's lecture course at the University of Marburg in the summer of 1925 an early version of Being and Time 1927 offers a unique glimpse into the motivations that prompted the writing of this great philosopher's master work and the presuppositions that gave shape to it The book embarks upon a provisional description of what Heidegger calls Dasein the field in which both being and time become manifest Heidegger analyzes Dasein in its everydayness in a deepening sequence of terms being in the world worldhood and care as the being of Dasein The course ends by sketching the themes of death and conscience and their relevance to an ontology that makes the phenomenon of time central Theodore Kisiel's outstanding translation permits English speaking readers to appreciate the central importance of this text in the development of Heidegger's thought The Concept of Time and Historical Experience Mihai

Popa,2023-09-26 This book is focused on the question does the event from which we extract historical experience acquire this status at the moment it occurs or later as it is remembered through the generations Historical experience is not a concept that facilitates the ascent of the historian to the fact it is closely related to the fact This does not make it easier to handle because the fact itself is retractable it hides its social cultural essence and meaning in time The present of the historian narrator restores as in an incessant change of perspective the diachrony of the fact looking for the present of the past fact The experience suddenly becomes a relationship between two temporal actualities that seek their own cultural identity From this perspective history moves with us The weight of the conceptualization of a past reality is given by the comprehensive weight impossibility of the fact experience The work is about the philosophy of history It is addressed to students historians and researchers in the field of the theory of history

The Concept of Time in the Study of History Martin Heidegger,2024-05-09 A modern translation of Heidegger s early work The Concept of Time in the Study of History original German title Der Zeitbegriff in Der Geschichtswissenschaft originally published in 1916 This edition contains a new afterword by the Translator a timeline of Heidegger s life and works a philosophic index of core Heideggerian concepts and a guide for terminology across 19th and 20th century Existentialists This translation is designed for readability and accessibility to Heidegger s enigmatic and dense philosophy Complex and specific philosophic terms are translated as literally as possible and academic footnotes have been removed to ensure easy reading Composed during Heidegger s habilitation phase at the University of Freiburg 1915 1916 this early text interrogates how historians conceptualize time a topic shaped by his mentors Heinrich Rickert and Emil Lask who sought to reconcile historical methodology with Neo Kantian epistemology Heidegger critiques historiographical objectivism the tendency to treat time as a linear sequence of now points stripped of lived experience For the young Heidegger influenced by Dilthey s hermeneutics and Husserl s nascent phenomenology historical time cannot be reduced to chronology it must account for the meaning structures that emerge from human agency and cultural context The work s framework remains indebted to Rickert s distinction between natural sciences generalizing and historical sciences individualizing but Heidegger strains against these limits hinting at his later existential notion of temporality Here time is not yet the ecstatic horizon of Being and Time 1927 but a vital temporal flow Lebensstrom that historical study must interpret hermeneutically Heidegger argues that historicity Geschichtlichkeit arises from the interplay of past present and future within human projects a proto phenomenological move rejecting positivist timelines Yet his language remains tethered to Neo Kantian terminology framing history as a science of meaning rather than a disclosure of Dasein s finite existence The text s significance lies in its negative space its failure to fully break from Rickert s formalism exposes the need for Heidegger s later ontological turn By 1927 this early vital flow becomes Dasein s care driven temporality but in 1916 the tools to dynamite historicism s foundations are still being forged in the shadow of Freiburg s academic orthodoxies provides a thorough review of the concept of time in the Western philosophic tradition Encompassing a wide range of writings from the Book of Genesis and the classical thinkers to the work of such twentieth century philosophers as Collingwood and McKeon all with introductory essays by the editor this classic anthology offers a synoptic view of the changing philosophic notions of time New Directions in the Russellian Theory of Time Emiliano Boccardi,L. Nathan Oaklander,Erwin Tegtmeier,2024-12-26 The main debates in the philosophy of time have centred on whether A theory with events ordered by pastness presentness and futurity or B theory ordered by earlier than or later than are equally fundamental Emiliano Boccardi L Nathan Oaklander and Erwin Tegtmeier instead uphold the Russellian theory or R theory and consider not only the fundamental differences but also its superiority They argue McTaggart s misinterpretation of Russell has led to a false dichotomy between the A and B theories while exploring the connection between temporal relations temporal facts and time In defence of the R theory they argue how it offers a metaphysical explanation of the nature of time in addition to investigating whether ontological theories of time can be considered from a moral or existential point of view Using an ontological approach this volume clarifies what is mistaken about both theories can only be resolved by adopting a Russellian philosophy reaching beyond the A theory vs B theory debate The End of the Concept of "Time"! Russell Moon,1995 The Clock and the Arrow: A Brief Theory of Time , Routledge Library Editions: Philosophy of Time Various Authors,2021-03-05 Reissuing five works originally published between 1937 and 1991 this collection contains books addressing the subject of time from a mostly philosophic point of view but also of interest to those in the science and mathematics worlds These texts are brought back into print in this small set of works addressing how we think about time the history of the philosophy of time the measurement of time theories of relativity and discussions of the wider thinking about time and space among other aspects One volume is a thorough bibliography collating references on the subject of time across many disciplines Epistemology ; Or, The Theory of Knowledge: pt. Truth and certitude: their criteria and motives Peter Coffey,1917 Supplements Martin Heidegger,2002-09-26 A comprehensive anthology of Heidegger s early essays On the Way to Understanding the Time Phenomenon A. P. Levich,1995 The subject of this book is time one of the small number of elusive essences of the world unsubdued by human will The three global problems of natural science those of the origin of the Universe life and consciousness cannot be solved without finding out the nature of time Without a good construction of time it is impossible to describe to qualify to forecast and to control various processes in the animate and inanimate nature Special attention is paid to the ways of adequate inclusion of the properties of time in the derivation of the fundamental equations of motion for natural systems Introduction to Objectivist Epistemology Ayn Rand,1990-04-26 Today man s mind is under attack by all the leading schools of philosophy We are told that we cannot trust our senses that logic is arbitrary that concepts have no basis in reality Ayn Rand opposes that torrent of nihilism and she provides the alternative in this eloquent presentation of the essential nature and power of man's conceptual faculty. She offers a startlingly original solution to the problem that brought about the collapse of modern philosophy: the problem of universals. This brilliantly argued, superbly written work, together with an essay by philosophy professor Leonard Peikoff, is vital reading for all those who seek to discover that human beings can and should live by the guidance of reason.

The Personal Experience of Time B. Gorman, 2013-03-09

The fundamental nature of human time experience has concerned artists, poets, philosophers, and scientists throughout the ages. Any consideration of human action requires awareness of its temporal aspects. However, simply to view time in the same units and dimensions as the physicist employs in describing events robs personal time of its lived quality. The use of physical time concepts in the description of human events is often artificial and misleading. It fails to account for the facts that human time estimates rarely match clock and calendar time; that societies and individuals demonstrate vast differences in their constructions and uses of time; and that temporal perceptions and attitudes change within an individual both during a single day and throughout his life span. The present volume does not view time as something that is sensed in the same way that one would sense or perceive spatial or sensory stimuli. Rather, it views time as a complex set of personally experienced cognitive constructs used by individuals and cultures to account for the order, the duration, and the organization of events. The authors in this book take a strong departure from earlier psychophysical studies of a time sense and address themselves to the uses and elaborations of time concepts in personal and social functioning.
