The Consolations Of Space The Place Of Romance In Hawthorne Melville And James:

The Consolations of Space Pamela Schirmeister, 1990 Unlike studies that detail how American writers have responded to the physical American landscape this book takes its point of departure from the peculiarities of romance as American writers have understood it Romance has always been tied to place but not to literal or regional place even when the topography of romance is represented as a place to which one might actually go it is always as Coleridge remarked of Spenser's Faeryland a mental landscape that landscape is by its very nature visionary so that its details necessarily constitute a trope of perspective It is the space the writer creates in which he or she stands so as to see things better under those particular lights and shadows that make romance possible Other writers have and have not been there before While the spaces of romance create the writer's perspective trope the very writing of romance they contain complex allusions to poetic forebears Thus this book also explores the function of literary allusion in American romance especially in the nineteenth century

The Complete Idiot's Guide to American Literature Laurie E. Rozakis, 1999 Looks at American authors from Washington Irving to John Updike and provides brief biographical sketches excerpts and summaries of major works and explanations of major literary movements

The House, the World, and the Theatre Geraldo Magela Cáffaro, 2016-02-29 The House the World and the Theatre departs from three ideologically resonant spatial metaphors to explore key aspects of nineteenth century literature and culture At the centre of the discussion is the way authors fashioned themselves to cater to ever expanding audiences and to the new conditions of publishing The prefaces of Hawthorne Dickens and James illustrate the conflicts underlying the new forms of self definition in the nineteenth century and mediate the perception of authorship as a category that blurs the boundaries between social life and performance This book combines genre criticism new historicism literary history and contemporary perspectives in readings that show the imaginative quality of prefatory writing and the enduring relevance of canonical authors in the twenty first century

Going Home Through Seven Paths to Nowhere Katalin G. Kállay, 2003 This book is one of those rare combinations of intellectual brilliance stylistic clarity and sheer verve The book contains a series of major works of American short fiction by

Edgar Allan Poe Nathaniel Hawthorne Herman Melville and Henry James as occasions for a mode of reading in which the readers aim is to establish an intimate relationship with the special arrangement of words in a text governed by a trust in a happy coincidence of moments in which one might recognize the words relevance to ones life Dr Kllay calls this a good encounter a term she adopts from the writings of philosopher Stanley Cavell In her detailed theoretical introduction Dr Kllay lays bare her scholarly debt primarily to the writings of Cavell himself and to the work of literary critic Wolfgang Iser as she further develops and clarifies the idea of the good encounter Here she identifies the good encounter with a particular trope which appears within the tales themselves and which also

Question of American Art Deanna Fernie, 2016-12-05 Deanna Fernie analyzes the significance of sculpture in Hawthorne's fiction through the recurring motif of the fragment in its double guise as ruin and project. Her book casts new light on Hawthorne's memorable ruined and unfinished images from the rough hewn figurehead of Drowne's Wooden Image 1844 to the tattered letter A in the unfinished loft of the Custom House in The Scarlet Letter 1850 and the unfinished bust of Donatello in The Marble Faun 1860. Fernie shows how the tension between the formed and unformed enabled Hawthorne to interrogate the origins and the distinctive possibilities of art in America in relation to established European models. At the same time she suggests that sculpture challenged and provoked Hawthorne's shaping of his own specifically literary art, stimulating him to develop its capacities for expressing irresolution and change. Fernie establishes the intellectual contexts for her study through a discussion of sculpture and fragmentary form as revealed in American, British and Continental thought. Her book will be an important text not only for American literature scholars but also for anyone interested in British and Continental Romanticism and the intersections of art and literature. Literary Geography Lynn M. Houston, 2019-08-02 This reference investigates the role of landscape in popular works and in doing so explores the time in which they were written. Literary Geography: An Encyclopedia of Real and Imagined Settings is an authoritative guide for students, teachers and avid readers who seek to understand the importance of setting in interpreting works of literature including poetry. By examining how authors and poets shaped their literary landscapes in such works as The Great Gatsby and Nineteen Eighty-Four, readers will discover historical, political and cultural context hidden within the words of their favorite reads. The alphabetically arranged entries provide easy access to analysis of some of the most well known and frequently assigned pieces of literature and poetry. Entries begin with a brief introduction to the featured piece of literature and then answer the questions: How is literary landscape used to shape the story? How is the literary landscape imbued with the geographical, political, cultural and historical context of the author's contemporary world, whether purposeful or not? Pop-up boxes provide quotes about literary landscapes throughout the book and an appendix takes a brief look at the places writers congregated and that inspired them. A comprehensive scholarly bibliography of secondary sources pertaining to mapping physical and cultural geography, ecocriticism and the role of nature in literature rounds out the work. The Arnoldian, 1990 The Reality of the Unreal Judit Borbély, 2005 In the nineteenth century the great cities underwent the most conspicuous transformation. The beauties and the dark side of urban existence soon came to be one of the central issues in contemporary literature and art. In The Reality of the Unreal the works of four great English writers of the time are analyzed with the focus on their representation of the city. Through the concrete image of London and Paris around the turn of the century as well as through the metaphorical role of the city as a concept, this book, a new volume in the Philosophiae Doctores series, provides differing views about the age as seen by H. G. Wells, George Gissing, Joseph Conrad and Henry James. The book's analysis arrives at the complex image of civilization at the end of the nineteenth century. Confounding Images Susan S.

Williams,2016-11-11 Susan Williams recovers the literary and cultural significance of early photography in an important rereading of American fiction in the decades preceding the Civil War The rise of photography occurred simultaneously with the rapid expansion of magazine publication in America and Williams analyzes the particular role that periodicals such as Godey's Lady's Book Burton's Gentleman's Magazine and Atkinson's Casket played in defining how photography was received At the center of the book are readings of a stunning array of fiction by forgotten and canonical writers alike including Edgar Allan Poe Louisa May Alcott and Sarah Hale as well as extended interpretations of Nathaniel Hawthorne's House of the Seven Gables and The Marble Faun and Herman Melville's Pierre In a concluding section Williams offers a view of the fictional portrait in the later nineteenth century when the proliferation of illustrated books once again transformed the relation between word and image in American culture

Practicing Romance Richard H. Millington,2014-07-14 Practicing Romance sets out to re tell the story of Hawthorne's career arguing that he is best understood as a cultural analyst of extraordinary acuity ambitious to reshape in a sense to cure the community he addresses Through readings attentive to narrative strategy and alert to the emerging middle class culture that was his audience the book defines and describes Hawthornian Romance in a new way not in customary fashion as the definitive instance of a peculiarly American genre but as a narrative practice designed to expose and restage the covert drama that affiliates us to our community Hawthorne's fiction thus recovers for its readers through the interpretive independence it teaches a freer more lucid more critical relation to the community we inhabit and the cultural engagement romance enacts in turn rescues Hawthorne from the confining marginality that the writer's career had threatened to confer. From the book's distinctive account of his narrative tactics especially his deployment of the voices and attitudes authoritarian or democratic entrapping or freeing that give shape to his ideological terrain Hawthorne emerges as a daring reinventor of the novel's cultural role. Nineteenth-century American Romance E. Miller Budick, 1996. Nineteenth-century American romance as a genre is defined by the writings of a particular group of authors: James Fenimore Cooper, Washington Irving, Charles Brockden Brown, Edgar Allan Poe, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Herman Melville, and Henry James, all of whom are associated with one another in time and place. In this volume, Emily Miller Budick examines the genre both as a style and within a historical context. She interprets American romance as an evolving literary aesthetic and cultural philosophy as an effort by a group of writers to produce what Noah Webster called an American tongue, a language imbued with the values of democracy and pluralism.
