The Degenerates:

The degenerates Chiara Zaccardi, 2018-12-19 A horror story that tells about the kidnapping of some American teenagers in a expensive private high school They re 17 years old and live in Cles a peaceful little town in California They all go to attend the same private expensive high school These things may seem like the only elements that these like many other teenagers have in common But there is more These few teens are the most deviant rebellious and undisciplined of the entire school They are all at risk of being expelled and forced to complete their education in an alternative setting at night due to their unwillingness to conform But at night within the walls of Kennedy High School something happens and the place that the kids have always looked at as familiar and safe becomes a nightmare Trapped and tortured the teens find a way out but This work is an unrestrained tale that produces a teeter totter of dramatic scenes that leaves one with bated breath And a surprise ending that completely reverses the situation It is a text that illustrates what the new generation is like and that allegorically reveals how society tends to marginalize teens by filling them with excessive wealth In turn removing from them the bare essentials basics and also the ability to tell good from evil In the end they become the adults they have learned to despise Inward and outward Translator James Brunetti PUBLISHER TEKTIME The Degenerates J. Romanticism and Film Will Kitchen, 2020-11-26

The relationship between Romanticism and film remains one of the most neglected topics in film theory and history with analysis often focusing on the proto cinematic significance of Richard Wagner s music dramas One new and interesting way of examining this relationship is by looking beyond Wagner and developing a concept of audio visual explanation rooted in Romantic philosophical aesthetics and employing it in the analysis of film discourse and representation Using this concept of audio visual explanation the cultural image of the Hungarian pianist and composer Franz Liszt a contemporary of Wagner and another significant practitioner of Romantic audio visual aesthetics is examined in reference to specific case studies including the rarely explored films Song Without End 1960 and Lisztomania 1975 This multifaceted study of film discourse and representation employs Liszt as a guiding thread structuring a general exploration of the concept of Romanticism and its relationship with film more generally This exploration is supported by new theories of representation based on schematic cognition the philosophy of explanation and the recently developed film theory of Jacques Rancière Individual chapters address the historical background of audio visual explanation in Romantic philosophical aesthetics Liszt s role in the historical discourses of film and film music and various filmic representations of Liszt and his compositions Throughout these investigations Will Kitchen explores the various ways that films explain or make sense of things through a Romantic aesthetic combination of sound and vision
