Submission No. 119
Wing span to effect a 90% increase in wing span.

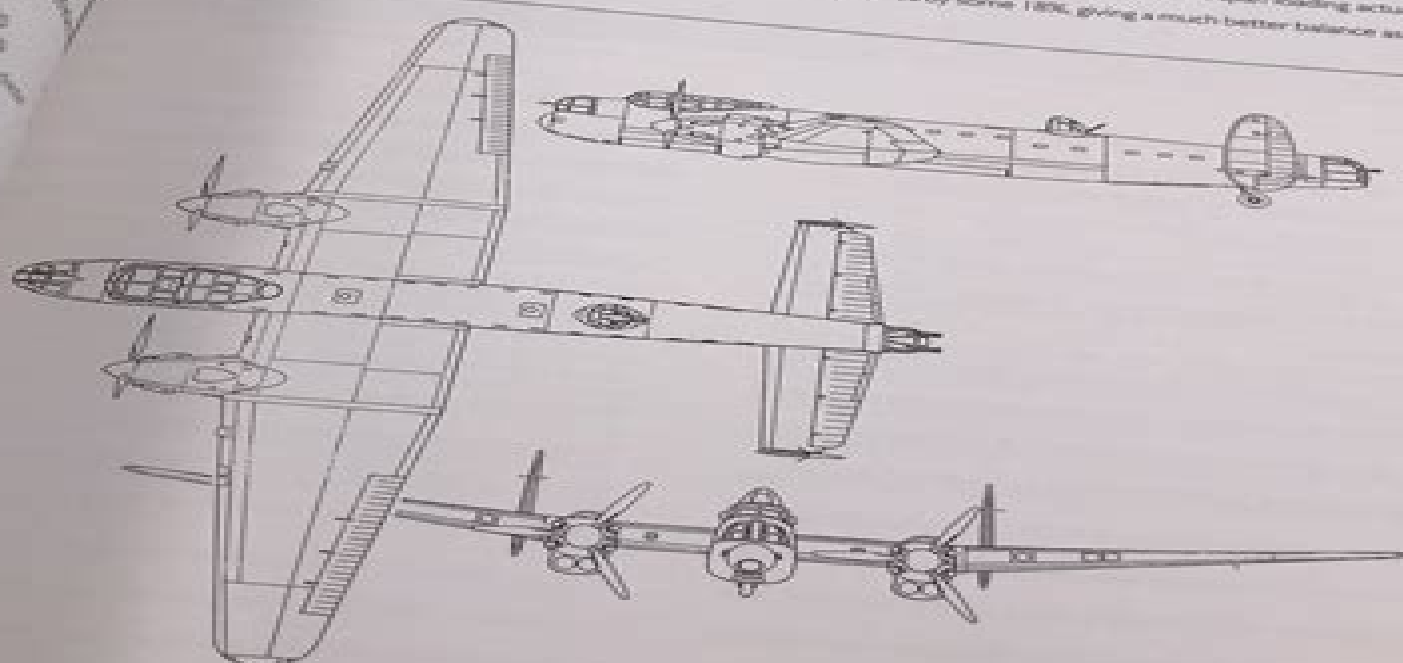

Submission No. 128
Increased span (288 in. to 336 in.) tailplane and elevator.

Submission No. 190
Introduction of large (12 ft high) and fin and rudder and the deletion of the dorsal fin.

The final configuration is shown in Fig. 29 and the production weights are compared with earlier data in Table 2.

As already indicated, progressive weight growth, together with the necessary modifications, significantly increased the tare weight of the aircraft. However, a complementary increase in gross weight, found possible owing to greater than anticipated strength, allowed the disposable load to be increased beyond the P13/34 submission level. This is also illustrated in Table 2.

Despite the increase in wing area, the production Manchester showed a wing loading some 10% higher than the original submission. However, because the wing area was achieved by span increases, the span loading actually reduced by some 18%, giving a much better balance as far

Auto Type 679 Manchester. Final production configuration, with 90 ft wing span, 33 ft tailplane span and 12 ft high fins, fitted with Frazer-Nash FN7 dorsal gun turret.
