The Hollywood Propaganda Of World War II:

Hollywood Goes to War Clayton R. Koppes, Gregory D. Black, 1990-08-16 The little explored story of how politics propaganda and profits were combined to create the drama imagery and fantasy that was American film during World War II 32 black and white photographs The Hollywood Propaganda of World War II Robert Fyne, 1997 During the Second World War over 300 Hollywood motion pictures were produced that in one way or another bore the propaganda imprimatur These popular movies and they consistently glorified the achievements of the American fighting man while vilifying all the members of the Axis pact and fostered morale on the Home Front and stood as tangible reminders that Old Glory mom apple pie and the St Louis Browns would emerge victorious from this global conflict But how successful was Hollywood's effort Citing numerous examples of flag waving dialogue Professor Fyne has produced an in depth study that examines these WWII movies analyzing many motifs stereotypes fiction as fact distortions and prevarications that permeate this genre His book lists the ten best titles of the war and discusses such topics as the World War I influence the different approaches toward the Italian German and Japanese military machines the glorification of the Soviet forces the image of the Chinese nationals the light hearted B comedies musicals and Westerns plus the American GI's inner frustration with his fabricated photoplay image For historians film watchers or social commentators this book complete with elaborate filmography offers important information about Hollywood's role in shaping the Home Front mores Long Ago and Far Away Robert Fyne, 2008-05-20 The Second World War was the greatest social political and economic upheaval of the 20th century As a popular Hollywood subject WWII still enthalls viewers six decades after Allied commanders affixed their signatures on the victory document in Tokyo Bay Recreating flag waving charges frontal beachhead assaults commando raids and even home front heroics these motion pictures for better or worse provide the primary learning experience for postwar generations After scrutinizing hundreds of screenplays Robert Fyne has written an in depth study of World War II films analyzing the different storylines points of view and contemporary events found in each In Long Ago and Far Away Hollywood and the Second World War Fyne examines WWII films from 1941 to the present explaining how the content and mood in these productions paralleled national mores and politics Some titles are laudatory even chauvinistic while others are frivolous or sophomoric Biographical screenplays both glorify and damn various leaders Some films bombard viewers with horrific experiences while others such as goofy science fiction titles with their wraiths and flying saucers seem inappropriate Love stories are examined as well as films revealing Japanese prisoner of war deprivations and Nazi concentration camp atrocities From Above and Beyond to Zone Troopers and The Best Years of Our Lives to Flags of Our Fathers this is a compelling look at how filmmakers have dramatized this pivotal period in history For historians movie watchers or social commentators Long Ago and Far Away complete with an elaborate filmography offers new information about Hollywood's diverse interpretations of the Good War

Hollywood Enlists! Ralph Donald, 2017 Frequently referred to as the Greatest Generation Americans of the World War II

era were influenced by Hollywood's depictions of their nation's role in world affairs and the virtue of its involvement in the war. Stories of the bravery and heroism of the American military as well as the moral and political threat posed by the enemy filled movie screens across the country to garner passionate support for wartime policies. In Hollywood Enlists Propaganda Films of World War II, Ralph Donald explores how the studios supported the war effort and helped shape the attitudes of an entire generation. Through films, the studios appealed to the public's sense of nationalism, demonized the enemy, and stressed that wartime sacrifices would result in triumph. The author contends that American films of the period used sophisticated but often overlooked strategies of propaganda to ideologically unite the country. While these strategies have long been associated with political speeches and writings during the war, little in-depth consideration has been given to their use in the era's cinema. By examining major motion pictures including Casablanca, The Flying Tigers, Mrs. Miniver, Sergeant York, They Were Expendable, and many others, Donald illustrates how various propaganda techniques aligned the nation's entertainment with government aims. Hollywood Enlists will appeal to readers with interests in war films and motion picture history as well as politics and social history during the war. The Columbia Companion to American History on Film Peter C. Rollins, 2004-03-24 American history has always been an irresistible source of inspiration for filmmakers, and today for good or ill, most Americans' sense of the past likely comes more from Hollywood than from the works of historians. In important films such as The Birth of a Nation (1915), Roots (1977), Apocalypse Now (1979), and Saving Private Ryan (1998), how much is entertainment and how much is rooted in historical fact? In The Columbia Companion to American History on Film, more than seventy scholars consider the gap between history and Hollywood. They examine how filmmakers have presented and interpreted the most important events, topics, eras, and figures in the American past, often comparing the film versions of events with the interpretations of the best historians who have explored the topic Divided into eight broad categories Eras Wars and Other Major Events Notable People Groups Institutions and Movements Places Themes and Topics and Myths and Heroes the volume features extensive cross references a filmography of discussed and relevant films notes and a bibliography of selected historical works on each subject The Columbia Companion to American History on Film is also an important resource for teachers with extensive information for research or for course development appropriate for both high school and college students Though each essay reflects the unique body of film and print works covering the subject at hand every essay addresses several fundamental questions What are the key films on this topic What sources did the filmmaker use and how did the film deviate or remain true to its sources How have film interpretations of a particular historical topic changed and what sorts of factors technological social political historiographical have affected their evolution Have filmmakers altered the historical record with a view to enhancing drama or to enhance the truth of their putative message

Hollywood's War with Poland, 1939-1945 M.B.B. Biskupski, 2010-01-08

This passionate carefully researched richly detailed well written study reveals the political motives behind WWII Hollywood's portrayal of Poles Choice During World War II Hollywood studios supported the war effort by making patriotic movies designed to raise the nation's morale Often the characterizations were as black and white as the movies themselves Americans and their allies were heroes while everyone else was a villain The peoples of Norway France Czechoslovakia and England were all good because they had been invaded or victimized by Nazi Germany Yet Poland the first country to be invaded by the Third Reich was repeatedly represented in a negative light In this prize winning study Polish historian M B B Biskupski explores why Biskupski presents a close critical study of prewar and wartime films such as To Be or Not to Be In Our Time and None Shall Escape Through memoirs letters diaries and memoranda written by screenwriters directors studio heads and actors Biskupski examines how the political climate and especially pro Soviet sentiment influenced Hollywood films of the time Winner of the Oscar Halecki Prize A Choice Outstanding Academic Title

Hollywood's High Noon Thomas Cripps, 1996-11-13

A lively narrative history of Hollywood's classical age Over the last twenty five years the field of cinema studies has offered a dramatic reassessment of the history of film in general and of Hollywood in particular Writers have drawn on the methodologies of a number of disciplines literary criticism sociology psychology women's studies and minority and gay studies to deepen our understanding of motion pictures the film industry and movie theater audiences In Hollywood's High Noon noted film historian Thomas Cripps offers a lively narrative history of Hollywood's classical age that brings the insights of recent scholarship to students and general readers From its origin during the First World War to the beginning of its decline in the 1950s Cripps writes Hollywood operated as did other American industries movies were created by a rational production system regulated by both government and privately organized interests and subject to the whims of a fickle marketplace Yet these films did offer consumers something unique in darkened movie palaces across the country audiences projected themselves their hopes and ideas onto silver screens profoundly mediating their reception of Hollywood

s flickering images Beginning with turn of the century moving picture pioneer Thomas Edison Cripps traces the invention of Hollywood and the development of the studio system He explores the movie going experience the struggle for social control over the movies through censorship the impact of sound on the style and content of films alternatives to Hollywood s oligopoly including race films and documentaries the paradoxical predictability and subversive creativity of genre pictures and Hollywood s self proclaimed shining moment during the Second World War Cripps concludes with a discussion of the collapse of the studio system after the war due in equal parts to suburbanization the emergence of television and government anti trust action

World War II, Film, and History John Whiteclay Chambers II, David Culbert, 1996-10-10 The immediacy and perceived truth of the visual image as well as film and television s ability to propel viewers back into the past place the genre of the historical film in a special category War films including antiwar films have established the prevailing public image of war in the twentieth century For American audiences the dominant image of trench warfare in World War I has been provided by feature films such as All Quiet on the Western Front and Paths of Glory The image of combat in the Second World War has been shaped by films like Sands of Iwo Jima and The Longest Day And despite claims for the alleged impact of widespread television coverage of the Vietnam War it is actually films such as Apocalypse Now and Platoon which have provided the most powerful images of what is seen as the reality of that much disputed conflict But to what degree does history written with lightning as Woodrow Wilson allegedly said represent the reality of the past To what extent is visual history an oversimplification or even a distortion of the past Exploring the relationship between moving images and the society and culture in which they were produced and received World War II Film and History addresses the power these images have had in determining our perception and memories of war Examining how the public memory of war in the twentieth century has often been created more by a manufactured past than a remembered one a leading group of historians discusses films dating from the early 1930s through the early 1990s created by filmmakers the world over from the United States and Germany to Japan and the former Soviet Union For example Freda Freiberg explains how the inter racial melodramatic Japanese feature film China Nights in which a manly and protective Japanese naval officer falls in love with a beautiful young Chinese street waif and molds her into a cultured submissive wife proved enormously popular with wartime Japanese and helped justify the invasion of China in the minds of many Japanese viewers Peter Paret assesses the historical accuracy of Kolberg as a depiction of an unsuccessful siege of that German city by a French Army in 1807 and explores how the film released by Hitler s regime in January 1945 explicitly called for civilian sacrifice and last ditch resistance Stephen Ambrose contrasts what we know about the historical reality of the Allied D Day landings in Normandy on June 6 1944 with the 1962 release of The Longest Day in which the major climactic moment in the film never happened at Normandy Alice Kessler Harris examines The Life and Times of Rosie the Riveter a 1982 film documentary about women defense workers on the American home front in World War II emphasizing the degree to which the documentary s engaging main characters and its message of the need for fair and equal treatment for women resonates with many contemporary viewers And Clement Alexander Price contrasts Men of Bronze William Miles s fine documentary about black American soldiers who fought in France in World War I with Liberators the controversial documentary by Miles and Nina Rosenblum which incorrectly claimed that African American troops liberated Holocaust survivors at Dachau in World War II In today s visually oriented world powerful images even images of images are circulated in an eternal cycle gaining increased acceptance through repetition History becomes an endless loop in which repeated images validate and reconfirm each other Based on archival materials many of which have become only recently available World War II Film and History offers an informative and a disturbing look at the complex relationship between national myths and filmic memory as well as the dangers of visual images being transformed into reality

Persuasion and Power James P. Farwell, 2012-11-27 Now more than ever in the arenas of national security diplomacy and military operations effective communication strategy is of paramount importance A 24 7 television radio and Internet news cycle paired with an explosion in social media demands it According to James P Farwell an expert in communication strategy and cyber war who has advised the U S SPECIAL OPERATIONS COMMAND and the Department of Defense and worked nationally and internationally as a media and political consultant this book examines how colorful figures in history from Julius Caesar to Winston Churchill Napoleon to Hugo Chavez Martin Luther to Barack Obama and Ronald Reagan have forged communication strategies to influence audiences Mark Twain said that history doesn t repeat itself but rhymes In showing how major leaders have moved audiences Farwell bears out Twain s thesis Obama and Luther each wanted to reach a mass audience Obama used social media and the Internet Luther used the printing press But the strategic mindset was similar Hugo Chavez identifies with Simon Bolivar but his attitude towards the media more closely echoes Napoleon Caesar used coins to build his image in ways that echo the modern use of campaign buttons His triumphs enormous parades to celebrate military victories celebrated his achievements and aimed to impress the populace with his power and greatness Adolph Hitler employed a similar tactic with his torchlight parades The book shows how the US government s approach to strategic communication has been misguided It offers a colorful incisive critical evaluation of the concepts doctrines and activities that the US Department of Defense and Department of State employ for psychological operations military information support operations propaganda and public diplomacy Persuasion and Power is a book about the art of communication strategy how it is used where and why Farwell s adroit use of vivid examples produce a well researched entertaining story that illustrates how its principles have made a critical difference throughout history in the outcomes of crises conflicts politics and diplomacy across different cultures and societies

The Marketing of World War II in the US, 1939-1946 Albert N. Greco, 2020-06-10 From the late 1930s until December 7 1941 isolationism and an antipathy toward war in Europe were strong political currents in the US However once the US entered World War II the entire apparatus of the US government was mobilized to market the war to Americans who were incredulous and horrified about the attack at Pearl Harbor Americans wanted immediate and detailed information from the US government and the nation's media and entertainment companies about the recent military disasters This book analyzes the complex relationships between the US government and the entire media and entertainment industries between 1939 and 1946 The US government realized in early 1942 that it needed to forge an alliance with the media and entertainment industries to create and maintain support for the war The Office of War Information OWI was the US government agency acting as the liaison between Washington and the diverse media and entertainment industries and all of them confronted a series of major issues and concerns to convince Americans to support the war effort This book offers business historians an examination of the complex and sometimes tense relationships between the OWI and the radio magazine newspaper and motion picture industries
