Delaplane, 2024-11-19 What the honey bee can teach us about evolution and ourselves How did the honey bee evolve into the complex colonial species that exists today and what does its evolution have to teach us about our own species In Honey Bee Social Evolution entomologist Keith Delaplane uses the humble but charismatic honey bee as a model of social evolution to highlight the many parallels a social insect colony shares with humans and other organisms Delaplane shows how social processes drive evolution for honey bee colonies humans and other animals Each chapter spotlights a honey bee colony level function such as group level reproduction task differentiation among cells group decision making social immunity defense behavior senescence anarchy cancer and more all with stunning parallels to those of other organisms These vivid comparisons grounded in a practical context emphasize how natural selection uses a common tool kit to solve similar problems across lineages By revealing the complex hive of similarities between the honey bee's society and our own Delaplane hopes to instill an ethos of solidarity with all organic life The honey bee colony shows how evolution is more than selfish survival of the fittest but equally a story of the success of cooperation and altruism Life Cycle of Bees Aminah McCloud, 2023-02-11 The egg larva pupal and adult phases of the honey bee life cycle are separated into these four categories Initial Stage The Egg Stage The only bee capable of producing between 2 000 and 3 000 eggs in a single day is the queen bee By the third day the egg has shifted to an upright position before falling In addition to fertilised eggs the queen bee also lays unfertilized eggs Queen bees or female bees develop from the fertilised egg Male bees sometimes known as drone bees are created when the unfertilized egg hatches Phase 2 The Larval Phase Three days after the egg turns into a larva and six days after the egg is deposited in the beehive a worker bee may be distinguished from the queen bee During their first three days as larvae the royal jelly is provided to all the larvae including the female bees the workers and the drone bees During this phase the larva sheds its skin several times The female larvae which develop into a queen bee are the only ones afterwards given royal jelly To protect and aid in the larvae's development into a pupa the worker bees seal the top of the cell with beeswax Phase 3 known as the pupal stage is when the bee has acquired wings eyes legs and little body hair giving it a look that is very similar to that of an adult bee The emerging adult bee chews its way out of the closed cell after the pupa has reached adulthood in stage four From the egg stage until adulthood the queen bee takes 16 days Drone bees grow into adult bees in 24 days whereas worker bees need 18 to 22 days to reach full development Conclusion The pollination process is mostly made possible by honey bees When pollinating honey bees may fly at a speed of around 20 mph while returning to the beehive with nectar they have collected at a speed of about 17 mph The pollination process is more effective and efficient as a whole because of this precise reason One of the tastiest dietary ingredients bee wouldn't be available to us for a very long time without honey bees sharing pollen
