King of the Barbareens Janet Hitchman, 2000-07-01 General Catalogue of Printed Books British Museum. Department of Printed Books, 1968 The Story of Pain Joanna Bourke, 2014-06-26 Everyone knows what it feels like to be in pain Scraped knees toothaches migraines giving birth cancer heart attacks and heartaches pain permeates our entire lives We also witness other people loved ones suffering and we feel with them It is easy to assume this is the end of the story pain is pain is pain and that is all there is to say But it is not In fact the way in which people respond to what they describe as painful has changed considerably over time In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries for example people believed that pain served a specific and positive function it was a message from God or Nature it would perfect the spirit Suffer in this life and you wouldn't suffer in the next one Submission to pain was required Nothing could be more removed from twentieth and twenty first century understandings where pain is regarded as an unrelenting evil to be fought Focusing on the English speaking world this book tells the story of pain since the eighteenth century addressing fundamental questions about the experience and nature of suffering over the last three centuries How have those in pain interpreted their suffering and how have these interpretations changed over time How have people learnt to conduct themselves when suffering How do friends and family react And what about medical professionals should they immerse themselves in the suffering person or is the best response a kind of professional detachment As Joanna Bourke shows in this fascinating investigation people have come up with many different answers to these questions over time And a history of pain can tell us a great deal about how we might respond to our own suffering in the present and just as importantly to the suffering of those around us The Intellectual Life of the British Working Classes Jonathan Rose, 2001-01-01 This landmark book traces the rise and decline of the British autodidact from the pre industrial era to the twentieth century Using innovative research techniques and a vast range of unexpected sources such as workers' memoirs social surveys and library registers Rose shows which books people read how and why they educated themselves and what they knew In the process he shines a bold new light on working class politics ideology popular culture and the life of the mind This book has won the Longman History Today Book of the Year Award 2001 the SHARP History Book Prize the Jacques Barzun Prize in Cultural History 2001 and the New Jersey Council for the Humanities Book Award Book jacket The King of the Barbareens Janet Hitchman, 1998 All my life I have been looking for love but have been so deluded by films and novels as to what really was love that I didn't recognise it when it was there The autobiography of an orphan a plain intelligent girl passed like a bad penny from one Norfolk fosterhome to another longing for love and always ruining her own chances by her defiant attitude In this classic moving and honest biography set in the 1920s Janet Hitchman sees her own failings as clearly as she admits the remarkable achievements of the Dr Barnardos Home where she eventually finished her schooling and from which she launched into the working world The Common People of Great Britain John Fletcher Clews Harrison, 1985 Children's Book Review, 1975 Issues for Apr 1971 include separately paged
