interaction between Syria and Georgia in Late Antiquity Emma Loosley Leeming, 2018-06-12 In Architecture and Asceticism Loosley Leeming presents the first interdisciplinary exploration of Late Antique Syrian Georgian relations available in English. The author takes an interdisciplinary approach and examines the question from archaeological, art historical, historical, literary, and theological viewpoints to try and explore the relationship as thoroughly as possible. Taking the Georgian belief that Thirteen Syrian Fathers introduced monasticism to the country in the sixth century as a starting point, this volume explores the evidence for trade, cultural, and religious relations between Syria and the Kingdom of Kartli, what is now eastern Georgia, between the fourth and seventh centuries CE. It considers whether there is any evidence to support the medieval texts and tries to place this posited relationship within a wider regional context. Rural Families in Soviet Georgia Tamara Dragadze, 2003-09-02 First published in 2004, Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an informal company.

Strangers in a Strange Land Paul Manning, 2019-08-28 Manning examines the formation of nineteenth-century intelligentsia print publics in the former Soviet republic of Georgia, both anthropologically and historically. At once somehow part of Europe, at least aspirationally, and yet rarely recognized by others as such, Georgia attempted to forge European-style publics as a strong claim to European identity. These attempts also produced a crisis of self-definition as European Georgia sent newspaper correspondents into newly reconquered Oriental Georgia only to discover that the people of these lands were strangers. In this encounter, the community of strangers of European Georgian publics proved unable to assimilate the people of the strange land of Oriental Georgia. This crisis produced both notions of Georgian public life and European identity, which this book explores. Proceedings of the Royal Geographical Society and monthly record of geography, 1888
