Community Capacity and Resilience in Latin America Paul R. Lachapelle,Isabel Gutierrez-Montes,Cornelia Butler Flora,2020-05-20 Community Capacity and Resilience in Latin America addresses the role of communities in building their capacity to increase resiliency and carry out rural development strategies in Latin America Resiliency in a community sense is associated with an ability to address stress and respond to shock while obtaining participatory engagement in community assessment planning and outcome Although the political contexts for community development have changed dramatically in a number of Latin American countries in recent years there are growing opportunities and examples of communities working together to address common problems and improve collective quality of life This book links scholarship that highlights community development praxis using new frameworks to understand the potential for community capacity and resiliency By rejecting old linear models of development based on technology transfer and diffusion of technology many communities in

Latin America have built capacity of their capital assets to become more resilient and adapt positively to change This book is an essential resource for academics and practitioners of rural development demonstrating that there is much we can learn from the skills of self diagnosis and building on existing assets to enhance community capitals Chapter 3 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 license

The Future of the Jewish Community in America American Jewish Committee,1973 The Development of Rural America George Loris Brinkman,1974 The Lost City Alan Ehrenhalt,1996-08-23 Millions of Americans yearn for a lost sense of community for the days when neighbors looked out for one another and families were stable and secure The 1950s are regarded as the golden age of community but 1960s rebellion and 1980s nostalgia have blurred our view of what life was really like back then In The Lost City Alan Ehrenhalt cuts through the fog immersing us in the sights sounds and rhythms of life in America forty years ago He takes us down the streets and into the homes schools and shops of three neighborhoods in one quintessentially American city Chicago In St Nicholas of Tolentine parish on the Southwest Side we see how the local Catholic church served as the moral and social center of community life In Bronzeville the heart of the black South Side we meet the civic leaders who offered hope and role models to people hemmed in by poverty and segregation And in Elmhurst a commuter suburb bursting with new subdivisions we witness the culture of middle class conformity and the ways in which children and adults bent to the rules of the majority culture Through evocative stories and incisive analysis Ehrenhalt shows that the glue holding each neighborhood together was an unstated social compact under which people accepted limits in their lives and deferred to authority figures to enforce those limits a compact destroyed by the baby boomers rejection of authority in the 1960s Since that time an entire generation has come to believe that personal choice is the most important of life's values But Ehrenhalt argues that if we truly wish to balance the demands of modern life with a feeling of community we have a great deal to learn from the limited life of the 1950s The Lost City reveals the price we must pay to restore community in our lives today and the values that will make such a restoration possible Publication of the American Sociological Society American Sociological Association,1929 List of members in v 1 5 25 28 supplemental list in v 26 27
