Colonial Cities R.J. Ross, Gerard J. Telkamp, 2012-12-06 by ROBERT ROSS and GERARD J TELKAMP I In a sense cities were superfluous to the purposes of colonists The Europeans who founded empires outside their own continent were primarily concerned with extracting those products which they could not acquire within Europe These goods were largely agricultural and grown most often in a climate not found within Europe Even when as in India before 1800 the major exports were manufactures in general they were still made in the countryside rather than in the great cities It was only on rare occasion when great mineral wealth was discovered that giant metropolises grew up around the site of extraction Since their location was determined by geology not economics they might be in the most inaccessible and inconvenient areas but they too would draw labour off from the agricultural pursuits of the colony as a whole From the point of view of the colonists the cities were therefore in some respects necessary evils as they were parasites on the rural producers competing with the colonists in the process of surplus extraction Nevertheless the colonists could not do without cities The requirements of colonisation demanded many unequivocally urban functions Pre eminent among these was of course the need for a port to allow the export of colonial wares and the import of goods from Europe or from other parts of the non European world in the country trade as it was known around India

The Living City David Cadman, Geoffrey Payne, 2019-06-21 First published in 1990 The options and probabilities for the future of cities are issues of outstanding contemporary importance both in the developed and developing worlds The Living City draws together both current mainstream ideas on their futures and various alternative views to enliven the debate and put forward an agenda for sustainable urban development emphasizing ideas that question the economic imperatives of that development Certain aspects of city life the economy of the city city countryside relationships the city as a cultural centre are selected for study as the book looks at the historical past and current experiences to speculate on the likely condition of cities in the future In addition the book investigates whether the Third World experience of city life is a separate experience or whether there are lessons to be learnt relating to all cities The book will appeal to professionals in the surveying planning and architectural fields as well as students and academics in Planning Geography Economics Architecture Development Studies and Sociology and anyone interested in issues concerning the city and the environment

Siddle,C.T Smith,Mr C T Smith,E. Thomas-Hope,2013-04-15 The label of Third World covers half the land surface and three quarters of the population of the planet The problems and potential of this region and its peoples are attracting increasing concern and interest Fully revised and updated this edition includes a wealth of photographic and line illustrations boxed case studies chapter summaries guides to further reading Issues of increasing concern at the end of the twentieth century are fully addressed for example the widening gap in economic performance between countries in the Third world and the assertion of national cultures in the face of globalisation New material on gender issues and the environmental impact of development has been included Theorising Development in Africa Munyaradzi Mawere,2017-12-17 How come Africa is so underdeveloped when it is one of the richest continents on earth Indeed Africa is a paradox it is poor and rich at the same time Resource wise Africa is among the top richest continents in the world yet development wise it is the poorest of all continents This paradox desperately needs comprehensive theoretical unpacking and rethinking if Africa is to achieve breakthroughs to the multifaceted development related problems that have haunted it since the beginning of its unequal encounters with Europe Regrettably current Eurocentric development theories fall short on several fronts The need for a comprehensive body of knowledge theories and models from the perspective of Africans persists in urgency The present volume is an attempt to theorise Africas under development with a view to provide a sustainable enduring framework of operations that will arrest the elusive predicament of the continent while taking it forward from its current position of passivity It rethinks and re imagines a number of externally imposed problematic mechanisms used unconsciously in Africa with the intention to raise awareness and foster critical thinking in scholars and scholarship on African development With its predicament oriented theorising the book is a pacesetter on how to think and research Africas under development It is also an invaluable asset for social scientists policy makers development practitioners civil society activists and politicians

Tourism and the Millennium Development Goals Jarkko Saarinen, Christian M. Rogerson, Haretsebe Manwa, 2013-10-31 In 2000 United Nations adopted the Millennium Development Goals UN MDGs committing the member nations to a new global partnership to reduce extreme poverty and setting out a series of specific targets with a deadline of 2015 Related to the UN MDGs tourism is increasingly seen as a promising tool for poverty reduction ensuring environmental sustainability and developing a global partnership for development for example Thus the industry has become an important policy tool for community and regional development in many developing countries and the expectations for tourism and its social and economic outcomes have evolved to a high level However there are still many challenges to overcome in the relationship between tourism industry development and poverty reduction This book aims to discuss the promises challenges and outcomes of tourism in development with a specific aim of drawing together research related to tourism and UN MDGs The papers discuss what lessons can be learnt and conclusions drawn from the utilisation of tourism for development and poverty reduction What emerges from this collection is a set of interesting results and notions which both support and challenge the connections between tourism and development and the new role of tourism in global development This book is an extended version of a special issue published in Current Issues in Tourism Urbanism, Colonialism and the World-economy Anthony King, 2015-03-27 Recent years have witnessed a surge in public awareness concerning the impact of world economic forces on cities In this challenging book the author argues that though the consciousness is new the phenomena themselves are not For the past two centuries at least world economic political and cultural forces have been major factors shaping cities patterns of urbanization and the physical and spatial forms of the built environment Anthony King believes that the historical context of contemporary global restructuring must be recognized if present day urban and regional change is to be properly understood He explores and documents the cultural and spatial links between metropolitan core and colonial periphery and examines the historical foundations of the world urban system He also looks at the social production of building and urban form and demonstrates their potential for understanding economic political social and cultural change on a global scale Theory of Urban Space Development Jin Duan, 2024-08-29 This book is a systematic monograph on urban space development theory exploring the laws of urban space development and the basic principles of planning and design It clarifies the connotation and methods of urban space development research highlights the deep structure and four laws of urban space development expounds the obvious characteristics of urban and regional forms and discusses the interventional role of urban planning and the development mode of Chinese urban space It also discusses the methodological change of modern urban design and forms the principles and core content of China's national spatial planning Guided by the fundamental principles and methods of development theory this book follows logical progression from concept to method from deep structure to manifest form from macro to micro and from law to planning By providing readers with a comprehensive and systematic urban space development research system this book is a valuable read for both researchers and graduate students in urban studies and architectural design The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content

Challenging Global Inequality Alastair Greig, David Hulme, Mark Turner, 2007-01-16 This major introductory text written by 3 leading names in the field provides an accessible overview of the challenges faced in overcoming global poverty and inequality in the 21st century Through an in depth assessment of development theory and practice the authors set out to advance two key arguments the first being the importance of historically contextualizing contemporary developmental problems in order to assess policy proposals and the second that inequality matters and how this notion has continually remained a central feature of development debates from colonial times to present day Ideal for undergraduate students taking development modules as part of political science and international relations degrees this engaging text proves to be essential reading when exploring the impacts of development on today's international political economy With each chapter covering inequalities from all different angles the authors clearly outline the impact of models such as globalization and neoliberalism as well as offering alternative views on the challenges posed by the UN's Millennium Development Goals Also available is a companion website with extra features to accompany the text please take a look by clicking below https://he.palgrave.com/companion/Greig/Challenging Global Inequality
