The Russo-Japanese War, Lessons Not Learned Major James D.

Sisemore, 2015-11-06 Characterized by some authors as a rehearsal for the First World War the Russo Japanese War was arguably the world's first modern war. During this war the lethality of weapons on the 20th Century battlefield was clearly demonstrated. Recording the events of the Russo Japanese War were military and civilian observers from every major power of the time. These observers wrote voluminous accounts of the war that clearly illustrated this new battlefield destructiveness. The research question of this thesis is what tactical lessons were available to the observer nations of the Russo Japanese War that were not used in their preparations for World War I. This paper will look at both observer accounts of the war and professional journal articles written soon after the war to consider this question. To answer this question the stationary Siege of Port Arthur and the maneuver Battle of Mukden are used as representative battles of this war. Reports from these two battles clearly demonstrate the lethality of modern warfare and foreshadow the combined effects of hand grenades mortars machineguns and field artillery in World War I.

American Gunfight Stephen Hunter, John Bainbridge, 2005-11-02

A fast paced definitive and breathtakingly suspenseful account of an extraordinary historical event the attempted assassination of President Harry Truman in 1950 by two Puerto Rican Nationalists and the bloody shoot out in the streets of Washington DC that saved the president's life. Written by Pulitzer Prize winner and New York Times bestselling novelist Stephen Hunter and John Bainbridge Jr an experienced journalist and lawyer American Gunfight is at once a groundbreaking work of meticulous historical research and the vivid and dramatically told story of an act of terrorism that almost succeeded. They have pieced together at last the story of the conspiracy that nearly doomed the president and how a few good men ordinary guys who were willing to risk their lives in the line of duty stopped it. It begins on November 1 1950 an unseasonably hot afternoon in the sleepy capital. At 2:00 P.M. in his temporary residence at Blair House the president of the United States takes a nap. At 2:20 P.M. two men approach Blair House from different directions. Oscar Collazo a respected metal polisher and family man and Griselio Torresola an unemployed salesman don't look dangerous not in their new suits and hats not in their calm purposeful demeanor not in their slow unexcited approach. What the three White House policemen and one Secret Service agent cannot guess is that under each man's coat is a 9mm automatic pistol and in each head a dream of assassin's glory At point blank range Collazo and then Torresola draw and fire and move toward the president of the United States Hunter and Bainbridge tell the story of that November day with narrative power and careful attention to detail They are the first to report on the inner workings of this conspiracy they examine the forces that led the perpetrators to conceive the plot The authors also tell the story of the men themselves from their youth and the worlds in which they grew up to the women they loved and who loved them to the moment the gunfire erupted Their telling commemorates heroism the quiet commitment to duty that in some moments of crisis sees some people through an ordeal even at the expense of their lives The Biographical
