

The background of the book cover is a painting of a winter landscape. The sky is a dark, heavy grey. The ground is covered in a thick layer of snow, rendered in shades of yellow and white. Several bare, dark trees stand in the foreground and middle ground. In the distance, a small, dark, low-lying building is visible. The overall mood is somber and quiet.

The Hour Between Dog And Wolf:

The Hour Between Dog and Wolf John Coates, 2012-06-14 Brilliant David Brooks The New York Times A profoundly unconventional book So absorbing that I wound up reading it twice Bloomberg Finalist for the Financial Times and Goldman Sachs Business Book of the Year What happens to your body when you take risks What happens to it when you make or lose a lot of money In this startling book physiologist and former Wall Street trader John Coates vividly illustrates what happens to your body when you engage in risk taking You transform into a different person a change Coates refers to as the hour between dog and wolf He tells a gripping story of a group of traders caught in a bull market and then a crash As the excitement builds he takes us inside the traders bodies to see the biology of risk taking at work a biology shared by athletes politicians soldiers anyone who ventures beyond their safety zone Coates also discusses how men and women excel at different types of risk how the stress of failure damages our health and how we can train our bodies so that they help rather than hinder our risk taking Revealing the biology behind bubbles and crashes The Hour Between Dog and Wolf sheds new and surprising light on issues that affect us all and Wolf John M. Coates, Professor John Coates, 2012-05-15 A successful Wall Street trader turned Cambridge neuroscientist reveals the biology of financial boom and bust showing how risk taking transforms our body chemistry driving us to extremes of euphoria or stressed out depression The laws of financial boom and bust it turns out have a lot to do with male hormones Canadian scientist Dr John Coates identifies the loop between testosterone and success that dramatically lowers the fear of risk in men He has dubbed the moment when traders transform into exuberant high flyers the hour between dog and wolf This is a fascinating account of his hypothesis The Emergence of Sin Matthew Croasmun, 2017-06-01 We can have a sense that when we try to do right by one another we aren't merely striving against ourselves The feeling is that we are struggling against something someone else As if there's a force a person that wishes us ill In his letter to the Romans the apostle Paul describes just such a person Sin a cosmic tyrant who constrains our moral freedom confuses our moral judgment and condemns us to slavery and to death Commentators have long argued about whether Paul literally means to say Sin is a person or is simply indulging in literary personification but regardless of Paul's intentions for modern readers it would seem clear enough there is no such thing as a cosmic tyrant Surely it is more reasonable to suppose Sin is merely a colorful way of describing individual misdeeds or at most a way of evoking the intractability of our social ills In The Emergence of Sin Matthew Croasmun suggests we take another look The vision of Sin he offers is at once scientific and theological social and individual corporeal and mythological He argues both that the cosmic power Sin is nothing more than an emergent feature of a vast human network of transgression and that this power is nevertheless real personal and one whom we had better be ready to resist Ultimately what is on offer here is an account of the world re-mythologized at the hands of chemists evolutionary biologists sociologists and entomologists In this world Paul's text is not a relic of a forgotten mythical past but a field manual for modern living Hour Between Dog and Wolf John Coates, 2012
