

CHAPTER 3

Integrating Pronunciation Into Listening/Speaking Classes

Greta Muller Levis and John Levis

Years ago, when a friend came over to our house, we introduced him to our “daughter” at the time, who was sitting on the living room floor, with her back to the front door.

“Jim, this is our German exchange student, Monika. Monika, this is Jim.”

“Hello,” said Jim.

“Hello,” replied Monika.

“You don’t sound like you’re from Germany,” said Jim.

After Jim had left, Monika let us know how incredulous she was. “How did he know I didn’t sound German? All I said was ‘hello!’”

How indeed? The consonants /h/ and /l/ are not all that different in German than they are in English. The vowels /ɛ/ and /o/ are not necessarily very different either. What was it that made Jim think Monika sounded like she didn’t have a foreign accent?

Probably it was a combination of things, including slight differences in vowel production, but more importantly, it was her prosody, or suprasegmentals, including the relative length (marked phonetically with a colon) and melody of the two syllables.

/hɛ - l oʊ - /

Prosody gives a language the characteristic shape that carries a person’s meaning beyond the words being spoken. Jim heard in Monika’s “hello” a person who was fluent and confident speaking English. Beyond the simple greeting word was an expression of her ability to communicate in a familiar and comfortable way.
