The Decline of Politics John English, 1977      Canadian Government Series ,1977      Canadian Parties in Transition, Fourth Edition Alain-G. Gagnon, A. Brian Tanguay, 2017-01-01 Canadian Parties in Transition examines the transformation of party politics in Canada and the possible shape the party system might take in the near future With chapters written by an outstanding team of political scientists the book presents a multi faceted image of party dynamics electoral behaviour political marketing and representative democracy The fourth edition has been thoroughly updated and includes fifteen new chapters and several new contributors The new material covers topics such as the return to power of the Liberal Party voting politics in Quebec women in Canadian political parties political campaigning digital party politics and municipal party politics

Full-Orbed Christianity Nancy Christie, Michael Gauvreau, 1996-03-25 Christie and Gauvreau look at the ways in which reformers expanded the churches popular base through mass revivalism established social work and sociology in Canadian universities and church colleges and aggressively sought to take a leadership role in social reform by incorporating independent reform organizations into the church sponsored Social Service Council of Canada They also explore the instrumental role of Protestant clergymen in formulating social legislation and transforming the scope and responsibilities of the modern state The enormous influence of the Protestant churches before World War II can no longer be ignored nor can the view that the churches were accomplices in their own secularization be justified A Full Orbed Christianity calls on historians to rethink the role of Protestantism in Canadian life and to see it not as the harbinger of anti modernity but as the chief harbinger of cultural change before 1940      The Waning of the Green Mark G. McGowan, 1999 Most historical accounts of the Irish Catholic community in Toronto describe it as a poor underclass of society ghettoised by the largely British Protestant population and characterised by the sectarian violence between Protestants and Catholics that earned Toronto the title Belfast of Canada Challenging this long standing view of the Irish Catholic experience Mark McGowan provides a new picture of the community s evolution and integration into Canadian society McGowan traces the evolution of the Catholic community from an isolated religious and Irish ethnic subculture in the late nineteenth century into an integrated segment of English Canadian society by the early twentieth century English speaking Catholics moved into all neighbourhoods of the city and socialised with and married non Catholics They even embraced their own brand of imperialism by 1914 thousands of them had enlisted to fight for God and the British Empire McGowan s detailed and lively portrait will be of great interest to students and scholars of religious history Irish studies ethnic history and Canadian history Mark G McGowan is associate professor of history at St Michael s College University of Toronto      Canadians ,1978

Choice ,1978      Canadian Books in Print Marian Butler, 2000      Duty to Dissent Geoff Keelan, 2019-11-01 During the First World War Henri Bourassa fierce Canadian nationalist politician and journalist from Quebec took centre stage in the national debates on Canada s participation in the war its imperial ties to Britain and Canada s place in the world In Duty to

Dissent Geoff Keelan draws upon Bourassa's voluminous editorials in Le Devoir the newspaper he founded in 1910 to trace Bourassa's evolving perspective on the war's meaning and consequences. What emerges is not a simplistic sketch of a local journalist engaged in national debates as most English Canadians know him but a fully rendered portrait of a Canadian looking out at the world. By situating Bourassa within a larger panorama that connects him to prominent war resisters from around the globe, Keelan offers fresh insight into one of Canada's most influential historical figures, reshaping our understanding of why Quebec's position on the Great War differed so radically from the rest of Canada. The Canadian Historical Review, 2001

A Practical Guide to Canadian Political Economy Wallace Clement, Daniel Drache, 1978. Until now there has never been a satisfactory bibliography of the books, articles, and other material that make up the literature of Canadian political economy. This checklist includes about 1500 items organized by subject and is as comprehensive as the compilers and their many advisers could make it. The introductory essay by Daniel Drache provides a brief history of Canadian political economy and a guide to the major books in this field. Published in 1978, A Practical Guide to Canadian Political Economy is a useful reference to sources published up to the late 1970s. Catalogue of the Public Archives Library, Public Archives of Canada, Library, 1979

Book Review Digest, 1979. Excerpts from and citations to reviews of more than 8 000 books each year drawn from coverage of 109 publications. Book Review Digest provides citations to and excerpts of reviews of current juvenile and adult fiction and nonfiction in the English language. Reviews of the following types of books are excluded: government publications, textbooks, and technical books in the sciences and law. Reviews of books on science for the general reader, however, are included. The reviews originate in a group of selected periodicals in the humanities, social sciences, and general science published in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain. Publisher: Canadian Parties in Transition Alain Gagnon, Brian Tanguay, 2007. Alain Gagnon and A Brian Tanguay present a multi-faceted image of party dynamics, electoral behaviour, political marketing, and representative democracy with chapters written by an outstanding team of political scientists. American Book Publishing Record, 1978

Canadian State Trials, Volume IV Barry Wright, Eric Tucker, Susan Binnie, 2015-11-26. The fourth volume in the Canadian State Trials series examines the legal issues surrounding perceived security threats and the repression of dissent from the outset of World War One through the Great Depression. War prompted the development of new government powers and raised questions about citizenship and Canadian identity, while the ensuing interwar years brought serious economic challenges and unprecedented tensions between labour and capital. The chapters in this edited collection, written by leading scholars in numerous fields, examine the treatment of enemy aliens, conscription, and courts martial; sedition prosecutions during the war and after the Winnipeg General Strike; and the application of Criminal Code and Immigration Act laws to Communist Party leaders. On to Ottawa Trekkers and minority groups. These historical events shed light on contemporary dilemmas: What are the limits of dissent in war emergencies and economic crisis? What limits should be placed on government responses to real and perceived challenges to its authority?

America, History and Life, 1997 Provides historical coverage of the United States and Canada from prehistory to the present Includes information abstracted from over 2 000 journals published worldwide The State and Enterprise Tom Traves, 1979 This series begun in 1978 will serve it is hoped as a vehicle for the publication of original studies in the general area of Canadian political economy and economic history with particular emphasis on the part played by the government in shaping the economy Collections of shorter studies as well as theoretical or internationally comparative works may also be included Based on case studies of businessmen s organizations federal regulatory agencies and several of the industries they regulated this book seeks to explain the emergence of the modern interventionist state as the product of competing claims on the state by manufacturers industrial workers and farmers each responding to the structural imperatives of the Canadian economy The survey details two distinct phases in federal industrial thinking between 1917 and 1931 The first phase covers the period of war and reconstruction to 1921 when the federal government first imposed and then withdrew from active regulation of the economy During the phase from 1921 to 1931 industrialists attempted to control competition and minimize class conflict without government regulation and looked to the state only to provide passive intervention in the form of the protective tariff In the first section demands for regulation by businessmen are examined in a study of the Canadian Reconstruction Association a businessmen s organization and the course of the regulatory experiences is charted in case studies of the Paper Controller nd the newsprint industry and the Board of Commerce and the sugar refining industry In the second section the search for security without regulations is examined in a discussion of the merger movement industrial relations policies and demands for tariff reforms The analysis is based on two detailed studies of political conflicts over claims presented to the Advisory Board on Tariff and Taxation for revisions to the tariff in the automobile and steel industries

Canadian Parties in Transition Brian Tanguay, Alain Gagnon, 1996 Regional Ministers Herman Bakvis, 1991 Bakvis challenges recent assumptions by political scientists that the era of strong regional ministers in Canadian government is passed drawing on developments and experiences in cabinet and its supporting agencies over the past decade Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR
