Koutroufinis, 2014-05-21 Alfred North Whitehead is arguably the most original 20th century philosopher of nature and metaphysics In recent decades a number of physicists have produced groundbreaking new theories in fundamental physics influenced by his process philosophy In contrast few biologists are even aware that Whitehead's radical rethinking of the Cartesian assumptions implicit in 19th century sciences might be relevant to their enterprise This book seeks to fill this gap by exploring how Whitehead's process ontology might provide a new philosophical foundation for the biosciences of the 21st century The central premise shared by all of the volume's authors is the idea that all living processes are irreducible processes Each chapter focuses on assumptions implicit in some of the core concepts of biology such as organism evolution information and teleology that play crucial explanatory roles in the biosciences but as metaphysical concepts fall outside its purview The authors each identify important shortcomings implicit in contemporary biological paradigms and show how an approach grounded in a process oriented metaphysics can avoid them Nature and Resources, 1987 Paths to Knowledge Barbara Sarter, 1988 Geontologies Elizabeth A.
