Literary Circles and Gender in Early Modern Europe Dr Julie D Campbell, 2013-04-28 A comparative analysis this study examines the interactions of early modern male and female writers within the context of literary circles In particular Campbell examines how the querelle des femmes as a discursive rhetorical tradition of praise and blame influenced perceptions of well educated women who were part of literary circles in Italy France and England from approximately 1530 to 1650 To gain a better sense of how querelle language and issues were used for or against learned women writers Campbell aligns selected works by female and male writers pairing them to analyze how the woman writer responds deflects or rewrites the male writer's ideological script on women She focuses first on the courtesan Tullia d Aragona's response in her Dialogo della infinit di amore to Sperone Speroni's Dialogo di amore and contrasts the actress writer Isabella Andreini's pastoral La Mirtilla with Torquato Tasso's Aminta She then discusses the influence of Italian actresses upon the manners and mores of French women of the Valois court especially focusing on performative aspects of French women's participation in court and salon rituals To that end she examines the influential salon of the aristocratic learned Claude Catherine de Clermont duchesse de Retz who encouraged the writing of positive querelle rhetoric in the form of Petrarchan Neoplatonic encomiastic poetry to buttress her reputation and that of her female friends Next Campbell reads Louise Labé's D bat de Folie et d Amour against Pontus de Tyard's Solitaire premier to illustrate the tensions between a traditional and nontraditional querelle stance She then discusses Continental influence upon English writers in the context of the Sidney circle in England Moving to the closet dramas of the Sidney circle Campbell examines the solidarity these writers demonstrated with nontraditional stances on querelle issues and finally she explores how three generations of English literary circles contested querelle issues in her discussion of Philip Sidney's Arcadia Mary Wroth's Urania and Anna Weamys

s Continuation of the Arcadia Campbell s analysis of how the confrontation between querelle issues and the new figure of the learned woman engendered friction across national cultural and gender boundaries enables us to understand more fully the intertextual connections between differing national literatures of the period Ultimately this study provides new perspectives on the production of the texts under consideration as well as paradigms for approaching other texts from the period
