The Destiny Of Germans In St Ivan And Other Writings:

The Destiny of Germans in St. Ivan and Other Writings Rajko Igic, 2002 In the Balkans generations live between wars The winds of war play havoc with the destinies of individuals peoples and nations scattering them across the world Only during periods of calm and when they have settled down some able diligent and wise manage to grasp the chance to fulfill their childhood dreams a warm family circle they had been deprived of or a career of a distinguished scientist The fragmented memoir that we are reading restrained in words but rich in feelings and intimations leads along lanes in which a village boy from Pannonian Plains curiously seeks knowledge about the world and becomes a citizen of the New World with encyclopedic view pondering the paradoxes of modern life and the destiny of coming generations The compassion he feels for the suffering of others the ease with which he writes and the unfinished mosaic of life make this book interactive Thus the reader can easily identify with the story and is almost tempted to add his own chapter based on personal experience

Cambridge Free Thoughts and letters on Bibliolatry; translated from the German of G. E. Lessing, by H. H. Bernard. [A translation of "Eine Parabel" and other writings by Lessing in reply to Goetze.] Edited by I. Bernard Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, 1862 Writing History in Late Imperial Russia Frances Nethercott, 2019-12-26

It is commonly held that a strict divide between literature and history emerged in the 19th century with the latter evolving into a more serious disciple of rigorous science. Yet in turning to works of historical writing during late Imperial Russia, Frances Nethercott reveals how this was not so; rather, she argues, fiction, lyric poetry, and sometimes even the lives of artists consistently and significantly shaped historical enquiry. Grounding its analysis in the works of historians Timofei Granovskii, Vasilii Klyuchevskii, and Ivan Grevs, Writing History in Late Imperial Russia explores how Russian thinkers, being sensitive to the social, cultural, and psychological resonances of creative writing, drew on the literary canon as a valuable resource for understanding the past. The result is a novel and nuanced discussion of the influences of literature on the development of Russian historiography, which shines new light on late Imperial attitudes to historical investigation and considers the legacy of such historical practice on Russia today. Kin Miljenko Jergovic, 2021-06-15 Kin is a dazzling family epic from one of Croatia's most prized writers. In this sprawling narrative, which spans the entire twentieth century, Miljenko Jergovic peers into the dusty corners of his family's past, illuminating them with a tender poetic precision. Ordinary, forgotten objects—a grandfather's beekeeping journals, a rusty benzene lighter, an army-issued raincoat—become the lenses through which Jergovic investigates the joys and sorrows of a family living through a century of war. The work is ultimately an ode to Yugoslavia; Jergovic sees his country through the devastation of the First World War, the Second, the Cold War, then the Bosnian war of the 90s, through its changing street names and borders, shifting seasons, through its social rituals at graveyards, operas, weddings, markets, rendering it all in loving, vivid detail. A portrait of an era. The Publishers Weekly, 1893
