Context: Families with high rates of childhood adversities (CAs) (multi problem families, MPF) have an increasing importance in public health-policy.

Objective: The present study addresses the relationship between risk- and protective factors and the severity and treatment-outcome of mental disorders.

Setting: Family-therapeutic home-based treatment for MPF. We examined a clinical sample ( $N = 1031$ ) of children between the age of 4 to 17, and a non-clinical sample of 148 children. We hypothesized that of all children of the clinical group have a predominance of risk factors and a higher number of psychopathological symptoms. Furthermore, we hypothesized that children with a predominance of protective factors benefit stronger from psychotherapy.

Main Results: In the clinical sample, most children met the criteria of a psychopathological diagnosis (95.7%, as compared to 21.6% in the non-clinical sample) and showed significant higher rates of CAs and significant less protective factors as compared to the non-clinical sample. The clinical group showed a significant reduction of psychopathological symptoms and benefited equally well from treatment. The number of risk factors was a significant predictor for a child from the non-clinical sample to meet the criteria of a psychopathological diagnosis, while the number of protective factors significantly predicted the absence thereof.

Conclusion: Children and adolescents with high scores of CAs show significant associations with child psychiatric symptoms ( $d = 0.35$ ; including all ICD-diagnosis such as, e.g., Asperger Syndrome, ADHD etc. with a higher rate of genetic etiology). Early life stressors, however, do not trigger an irreversible fate, as psychotherapy with young people with high numbers of risk factors does help to reduce psychopathological symptoms significantly (range of five outcome parameters:  $d = 0.31$ – $0.72$ ).

Keywords: protective factors, multi problem family, childhood adversities, outcome research evaluation, family therapies

The Development of a Child Psychiatric Treatment Program Helen K. Grace, 1974      Child Psychiatric Treatment Philip G. Ney, Deanna L. Mulvihill, 2018-09-21 Whilst there was a large number of primary care staff wanting to treat psychiatrically ill children they lacked adequate training There was in the past an insufficient number of prescribable measurable techniques to aid any training in this field of work This resulted in confusion and apathy amongst staff together with long periods of treatment which often weakened family relationships Originally published in 1985 this book was designed to equip all professionals dealing with emotionally or behaviourally disturbed children and their families with practical methods and techniques It demonstrates how staff can work more effectively when each child and family being treated has a detailed treatment programme each component of which can be readily understood and measured The 61 techniques included in this handbook were developed over many years during the authors experience in Canada Hong Kong and New Zealand      Emotional Disorders in Children and Adolescents G.
