The Department of Energy Phillip Margulies, 2005-12-15 During the oil embargo in the 1970s the shortage of oil created long lines and high prices at gas stations The environmental movement was new and calling attention to pollution caused by fossil fuels and the near melt down at Three Mile Island In an effort to calm fears and find solutions to America s energy problems the Department of Energy was created in 1977 This book relates the turbulent history of the department from the dark days of the energy crisis to the ongoing national debate over finding new sources of cleaner renewable energy The Department of Energy's FutureGen Program United States. Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, 1999 The sale of the Government's interest in British Energy Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2010-03-24 This report the 22nd from the Public Accounts Committee HCP 356 session 2009 10 ISBN 9780215545084 looks at the sale of the Government s interest in British Energy In January 2009 the Government sold its 36 per cent interest in British Energy as part of EDF s purchase of the Company The sale had potentially important implications for future energy security as British Energy though not financially strong enough to invest in new nuclear power stations itself owned land viewed by industry as being in the most suitable places for them. The Department did not however secure a binding commitment from EDF to build new nuclear power stations. The report adds it also failed to establish whether EDF had previously built any new nuclear power stations without public subsidy. A number of factors including planning decisions could result in EDF abandoning its plans to build new nuclear power stations with or without public subsidy. The Shareholder Executive hired investment bankers UBS at a cost of 4 million equivalent to a monthly payment of around 400 000 to advise on sale tactics, assist with negotiations and provide valuations of British Energy. The Committee considers it unacceptable that the Shareholder Executive considered it necessary to spend so much on external advice when it is supposed to possess expertise in these areas. The Government was fortunate in selling its interest in British Energy when energy prices were at a peak. The 4.4 billion sale proceeds were allocated to the Nuclear Liabilities Fund to put towards the future cost of decommissioning British Energy's existing power stations.
