The Desert of Wheat (EasyRead Comfort Edition) Zane Grey, 2019      The Desert of Wheat (Illustrated) Zane Grey, 2021-08-22 The Desert of Wheat is a thrilling and romantic tale of sabotage in the wheat fields of the Pacific Northwest during World War I A passionate novel of patriotic and anti union propaganda it portrays the anxieties of the young country threatened by a foreign war after the closing of the frontier Grey captures the heart of a nation at the brink of a century of change

The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2017-06-15 From the master of the western comes a novel full of romance and adventure The novel begins Late in June the vast northwestern desert of wheat began to take on a tinge of gold lending an austere beauty to that endless rolling smooth world of treeless hills where miles of fallow ground and miles of waving grain sloped up to the far separated homes of the heroic men who had conquered over sage and sand

The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2020-03-08 A thousand hills lay bare to the sky and half of every hill was wheat and half was fallow ground and all of them with the shallow valleys between seemed big and strange and isolated The beauty of them was austere as if the hand of man had been held back from making green his home site as if the immensity of the task had left no time for youth and freshness Years long years were there in the round hilled many furrowed gray old earth And the wheat looked a century old Here and there a straight dusty road stretched from hill to hill becoming a thin white line to disappear in the distance The sun shone hot the wind blew hard and over the boundless undulating expanse hovered a shadow that was neither hood of dust nor hue of gold It was not physical but lonely waiting prophetic and weird No wild desert of wastelands once the home of other races of man and now gone to decay and death could have shown so barren an acreage Half of this wandering patchwork of squares was earth brown and gray curried and disked and rolled and combed and harrowed with not a tiny leaf of green in all the miles The other half had only a faint golden promise of mellow harvest and at long distance it seemed to shimmer and retreat under the hot sun A singularly beautiful effect of harmony lay in the long slowly rising slopes in the rounded hills in the endless curving lines on all sides The scene was heroic because of the labor of horny hands it was sublime because not a hundred harvests nor three generations of toiling men could ever rob nature of its limitless space and scorching sun and sweeping dust of its resistless age long creep back toward the desert that it had been

The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2007-04 Author of more than sixty popular highly influential Western novels Zane Grey was born Pearl Zane Gray Although no one knows for certain it seems likely that Grey thought that Pearl was too feminine a name for an author of Western adventure Zane was Grey s family name and he was intensely proud of his Western pioneer heritage His first published book Betty Zane 1803 was inspired by the true story of Revolutionary War frontier heroism in his family Grey s early books about his own family were not commercially successful Beginning with his first Western novel The Heritage of the Desert Zane Grey launched upon one of the most influential writing careers in American history The Desert of Wheat was first published in 1919 It tells the story of Kurt Dorn a young American wheat farmer who is torn between saving his farm and defending the woman he loves and defending America during the First World War Kurt does eventually choose to go to war where he realizes how futile and destructive warfare is With a lyrical ending The Desert of War is different from Grey s Western novels but equally satisfying to readers The Desert of Wheat was made into a film called Riders of the Dawn in 1920

The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2012-12-03 Late in June the vast northwestern desert of wheat began to take on a tinge of gold lending an austere beauty to that endless rolling smooth world of treeless hills where miles of fallow ground and miles of waving grain sloped up to the far separated homes of the heroic men who had conquered over sage and sand These simple homes of farmers seemed lost on an immensity of soft gray and golden billows of land insignificant dots here and there on distant hills so far apart that nature only seemed accountable for those broad squares of alternate gold and brown extending on and on to the waving horizon line A lonely hard heroic country where flowers and fruit were not nor birds and brooks nor green pastures Whirling strings of dust looped up over fallow ground the short dry wheat lay back from the wind the haze in the distance was drab and smoky heavy with substance A thousand hills lay bare to the sky and half of every hill was wheat and half was fallow ground and all of them with the shallow valleys between seemed big and strange and isolated The beauty of them was austere as if the hand of man had been held back from making green his home site as if the immensity of the task had left no time for youth and freshness Years long years were there in the round hilled many furrowed gray old earth And the wheat looked a century old Here and there a straight dusty road stretched from hill to hill becoming a thin white line to disappear in the distance The sun shone hot the wind blew hard and over the boundless undulating expanse hovered a shadow that was neither hood of dust nor hue of gold It was not physical but lonely waiting prophetic and weird No wild desert of wastelands once the home of other races of man and now gone to decay and death could have shown so barren an acreage Half of this wandering patchwork of squares was earth brown and gray curried and disked and rolled and combed and harrowed with not a tiny leaf of green in all the miles The other half had only a faint golden promise of mellow harvest and at long distance it seemed to shimmer and retreat under the hot sun A singularly beautiful effect of harmony lay in the long slowly rising slopes in the rounded hills in the endless curving lines on all sides The scene was heroic because of the labor of horny hands it was sublime because not a hundred harvests nor three generations of toiling men could ever rob nature of its limitless space and scorching sun and sweeping dust of its resistless age long creep back toward the desert that it had been The Desert of Wheat Annotated
