The Design of the English Country House Harris,1985 The Design of the English Country House, 1620-1920
John Harris,1985 Catalogue of an exhibition at the Octagon Washington D C organized by the American Institute of Architects Foundation and the Royal Institute of British Architects The British Country House in the Eighteenth Century Christopher Christie,2000 This work explores the British country house between 1700 1830 and looks at the lives of the noblemen and the servants who inhabited them Reference is made to the whole of the British Isles and there is a discussion of their political significance Consumption and the Country House Jon Stobart,Mark Rothery,2016-05-20 This study explores the consumption practices of the landed aristocracy of Georgian England Focussing on three families and drawing on detailed analysis of account books receipted bills household inventories diaries and correspondence Consumption and the Country House charts the spending patterns of this elite group during the so called consumer revolution of the eighteenth century Generally examined through the lens of middling families homes and motivations this book explores the ways in which the aristocracy were engaged in this wider transformation of English society Analysis centres on the goods that the aristocracy purchased both luxurious and mundane the extent to which they pursued fashionable modes and goods the role that family and friends played in shaping notions of taste the influence of gender on taste and refinement the geographical reach of provisioning and the networks that lay behind this consumer activity and the way this all contributed to the construction of the country house The country house thus emerges as much more than a repository of luxury and splendour it lay at the heart of complex networks of exchange sociability demand and supply Exploring these processes and relationships serves to reanimate the country house making it an active site of consumption rather than simply an expression of power and taste and drawing it into the mainstream of consumption histories At the same time the landed aristocracy are shown to be rounded consumers driven by values of thrift and restraint as much as extravagant desires and valuing the old as well as the new not least as markers of their pedigree and heritage The Design of the English Country House John Harris,1985 England's Rural Realms Edward Bujak,2007-10-24 The English countryside in the nineteenth century experienced the shifting power struggle from the great landed estates towards democratisation Challenging received scholarship that the landed estates declined in power and patronage Bujak places the Victorian globalisation of trade alongside the democratisation of the English countryside By doing so he reveals that the economic decline of the great landed estates was balanced by their continued social and political influence in the countryside up to the Great War With its focus on Suffolk a county at the forefront of agricultural improvement and thus hardest hit by the agricultural depression the patterns revealed by England's Rural Realm demonstrates the durability of the great estate system across the English countryside The National Trust Book of the English House Interior Geoffrey W. Beard,1990 DO IT YOURSELF HOME IMPROVEMENT Architecture Without Kings Tim Mowl,Brian Earnshaw,1995 A general survey of what was being built in England and Wales during the Commonwealth years 1642-60 using the career of architect Inigo Jones 1573-1652 as a framework to demonstrate the gradual move from rich chaos to dull order. Covers the stark churches, the emerging architects of the Puritan order, country houses, London, the universities, gardens, and four large regions. Illustrated with black and white photographs and drawings. Distributed in the US by St Martin's Press. Annotation copyright by Book News Inc, Portland, OR.

English Architecture: Public & Private John F. Bold, 1993-07-01. This book brings together twenty-four original essays by colleagues, pupils, and friends of Kerry Downes. The essays range from the late middle ages to the twentieth century but are concentrated on the period to the study of which Kerry Downes has contributed so much: that of Wren, Vanbrugh, and Hawksmoor. Taken together, these essays display the different approaches taken by architectural historians and the rich variety of English architecture.

Locating Privacy in Tudor London Lena Cowen Orlin, 2007-12-13. Lena Orlin paints a dense picture of everyday life in Renaissance England with an emphasis on personal privacy, the built environment, and the life story of a remarkable undiscovered woman, merchant's wife and mother of four, Alice Barnham, with a central role in some of the most important untold stories of sixteenth-century women.

The Architects' Journal, 1987. The Country House Poem Alastair Fowler, 1994. This major new collection of almost all the known estate poems of the seventeenth century draws on the literary, historical, and artistic traditions of the period to clarify this much-debated genre. The poems are mostly reproduced in their entirety and include ten from the Mildmay Fane manuscripts, an important but so far unpublished source of such material. Full notes accompany the text, explaining difficult passages and relating them to their biographical, social, and political contexts. There is a substantial introduction, a comprehensive bibliography, and a listing of visual sources complementing the contemporary illustrations. Containing much new evidence for architectural and art historians as well as for literary scholars, The Country House Poem is set to become the definitive work in this field.

The Non-Representation of the Agricultural Labourers in 18th and 19th Century English Paintings Penelope McElwee, 2016-02-08. The life of the poor rural worker appears to have been one of unmitigated toil within an unequal society, a reality seldom endorsed in paintings of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. The contemporary viewer, who constituted less than three per cent of the population, wished to see visions of the idyllic golden landscapes of Merrie England, peopled by happy, contented workers, or alternatively images of the Big House, a feature and phenomenon now marching over the countryside, fed by a new building frenzy. This particular element would soon evolve into an all-consuming preoccupation for the wealthy throughout the period. Members of the upper echelons of society, with their families all attired in fine silks and satins, look out at their audience from ornately framed canvases as individuals. Yet the rural poor, the rabble at the gates, the unseen workforce who toiled at the behest of the Master, are virtually unknown. They have left few records. Enclosure came at a price. The Poorhouse beckoned. And still the agricultural labourer did virtually nothing for most of the eighteenth century to protest or rebel against the inequalities of his downtrodden existence Only the dreaded behemoth of the nineteenth century the threshing machine would stir him into action How would it end Medieval and Renaissance Drama in England J. Leeds Barroll,1995-03
