Language, Feeling, and the Brain Daniel Shanahan, 2017-09-08 Linguistic theory since the Cognitive Revolution has followed one of the premises of that revolution by largely sidelining the issue of emotions and concentrating on those aspects of language that are more strictly cognitive However during the last ten years research in cognitive science especially in neuropsychology has begun to fill in the gaps left by the exclusion of emotions from cognitive research The work of those like Oatley Zajonc Damasio and LeDoux to name a few has demonstrated both that it is possible to construct models of how emotions play into the workings of the psyche and that they are necessary in giving us a balanced view of the human mind

Language Feeling and the Brain attempts to apply the fruits of this new research in emotion to our understanding of language itself Building on Karl Pribram's integrated model of emotions and motivations the book takes an eclectic approach to explaining how emotions contribute to the nature of language drawing on research done in neuropsychology philosophy cognitive linguistics anthropology and related fields Its aim is to construct a propositional model for how the emotions may have contributed to the emergence of symbolic formation most especially in the forms of gesture and speech and how identifying that emotional influence sheds new light on everything we have had to say about language itself from lexis and grammar to culture and literature

Kövecses, 2003-09 Are human emotions best characterized as biological psychological or cultural entities Many researchers claim that emotions arise either from human biology i e biological reductionism or as products of culture i e social constructionism This book challenges this simplistic division between the body and culture by showing how human emotions are to a large extent constructed from individuals embodied experiences in different cultural settings The view proposed here demonstrates how cultural aspects of emotions metaphorical language about the emotions and human physiology in emotion are all part of an integrated system and shows how this system points to the reconciliation of the seemingly contradictory views of biological reductionism and social constructionism in contemporary debates about human emotion The

Language of Emotions Karla McLaren, 2010-06 Karla McLaren's unique empathic view of emotions surprisingly revalues even the most negative emotions and opens pathways to understanding the depths of the human soul Michael Meade author of The World Behind the World and The Water of Life Trickster Randall Potts, 2014-09-01 Trickster opens with a crank call to the reader How was I to know You were thin your garden Was covered in smoke That you sat in your house Coughing Over the course of these beautiful and eerily accomplished poems Potts's reader is taken on a journey that is at once time scarred and resolutely contemporary earthy and haunted moving from estrangement to reconciliation Amidst a deepening sense of crisis the Trickster of Potts s imagination emerges as aggressor prankster victim and healer forging resilient music from the afflictions of the mind s infested nest Trickster veers quickly from meditation and narrative to song plunging the reader into a liminal world of dreams archaic lyrics and fables populated with figures ranging from the Hawk and Worm the Cat and Dove to Cold and Death It is a wilderness in which all things are alive a blade of grass equal to the suffering of a lifetime Yet it is also a place of menace where a fly with one wing keeps tipping over in the grass where the ants will have him Whether or not the Trickster reaches utopia he reckons with the world that is achievable on earth and in words those dreams of woods relayed to you
