Massachusetts USA from Economic Botany Vol 68 2014 The Crystal Palace and the Great Exhibition Hermione Hobhouse, 2002-03-05 The Great Exhibition of 1851 and the Crystal Palace which housed it together became a British icon a symbol of free trade and a national success funded not only by taxes but by public subscription Though the Palace itself was banished to Sydenham to leave Hyde Park free for Londoners the Commission was re-invented under Prince Albert to spend the profits for the advancement of British industry The Commissioners first established South Kensington with its Museums and Colleges of Art and Science the Albert Hall and the Royal College of Music and then moved into the training of scientists and artists They assisted in the expansion of the British School at Rome and for over a century 1851 Scholars have been contributing to British scientific discoveries This book celebrates 150 years of the Commission's work fired by the application of art and science to productive industry a story of some success and permanent record yet a pilgrimage not without its episodes of dissension and controversy Science Versus Practice Robert Bud, Gerrylynn K. Roberts, 1984 The Politics of Evolution Adrian Desmond, 2011-02-15 Looking for the first time at the cut-price anatomy schools rather than genteel Oxbridge Desmond winks out pre-Darwinian evolutionary ideas in reform-minded and politically charged early nineteenth-century London In the process he reveals the underside of London intellectual and social life in the generation before Darwin as it has never been seen before The Politics of Evolution is intellectual dynamite and certainly one of the most important books in the history of science published during the past decade Jim Secord Times Literary Supplement One of those rare books that not only stakes out new territory but demands a radical overhaul of conventional wisdom John Hedley Brooke Times Higher Education Supplement Disputed Inheritance Gregory Radick, 2023-08-18 A root and branch rethinking of how history has shaped the science of genetics In 1900 almost no one had heard of Gregor Mendel Ten years later he was famous as the father of a new science of heredity genetics Even today Mendelian ideas serve as a standard point of entry for learning about genes The message students receive is plain the twenty-first century owes an enlightened understanding of how biological inheritance really works to the persistence of an intellectual inheritance that traces back to Mendel's garden Disputed Inheritance turns that message on its head As Gregory Radick shows Mendelian ideas became foundational not because they match reality little in nature behaves like Mendel's peas but because in England in the early years of the twentieth century a ferocious debate ended as it did On one side was the Cambridge biologist William Bateson who in Mendel's name wanted biology and society reorganized around the recognition that heredity is destiny On the other side was the Oxford biologist W F R Weldon who admiring Mendel's discoveries in a limited way thought Bateson's Mendelism represented a backward step since it pushed growing knowledge of the modifying role of environments internal and external to the margins Weldon's untimely death in 1906 before he could finish a book setting out his alternative vision is Radick suggests what sealed the Mendelian victory Bringing together extensive archival research with searching analyses of the nature of science and history Disputed Inheritance challenges the way we think about genetics and its possibilities past present and future British Naturalists in Qing China Fa-ti FAN, Fa-ti Fan, 2009-06-30 In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries Western scientific interest in China focused primarily on natural history. Prominent scholars in Europe as well as Westerners in China including missionaries, merchants, consular officers and visiting plant hunters eagerly investigated the flora and fauna of China. Yet despite the importance and extent of this scientific activity it has been entirely neglected by historians of science. This book is the first comprehensive study on this topic. In a series of vivid chapters Fa-ti Fan examines the research of British naturalists in China in relation to the history of natural history of empire and of Sino-Western relations. The author gives a panoramic view of how the British naturalists and the Chinese explored, studied and represented China's natural world in the social and cultural environment of Qing China. Using the example of British naturalists in China, the author argues for reinterpreting the history of natural history by including neglected historical actors, intellectual traditions and cultural practices. His approach moves beyond viewing the history of science and empire within European history and considers the exchange of ideas, aesthetic tastes, material culture and plants and animals in local and global contexts. This compelling book provides an innovative framework for understanding the formation of scientific practice and knowledge in cultural encounters.

Fa-ti Fan's study of the encounter between the British culture of the naturalist and the Chinese culture of the Qing is both a delight and a revelation. The topic has scarcely been addressed by historians of science and this work fills important gaps in our knowledge of British scientific practice in a noncolonial context and of Chinese reactions to Western science in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. In addition to the culture of Victorian naturalists and Sinology, Fan shows an admirable grasp of visual representation in science, Chinese taxonomic schemes, Chinese export art, British imperial scholarship and journeys of exploration. His treatment of the China trade and descriptions of Chinese markets and nurseries are especially welcome. I learned a great deal and I strongly recommend this book.

Philip Rehbock, author of Philosophical Naturalists: Themes in Early Nineteenth-Century British Biology. By focusing on the experiences of British naturalists in China during a time when it was gradually being opened up to foreign influences, Fan makes at least two important contributions to the history of science. He gives us an authoritative study of British naturalists in China as far as I know the only one of its kind and he forces us to rethink some of our categories for doing history of science, including how we conceive of the relationship between science and imperialism and between Western naturalist and native. Fan's scholarship is meticulous with careful attention to detail and his prose is clear, controlled and succinct.

to grass data than ever before in human history That is a marked step forward Congratulazioni Professor Quattrocchi Daniel F Austin writing in Economic Botany n Seeds of Fortune Sue Shephard,2012-11-05 For over a century and across five generations the Veitch family pioneered the introduction of hundreds of new plants into gardens conservatories and houses and were amongst the foremost European cultivators and hybridisers of their day The story begins in 1768 when a Scotsman called John Veitch came to England to find his fortune starting out as a gardener for the aristocracy Realising that horticultural mania had begun to spread throughout the social classes John s son James opened a nursery in Exeter and began to send some of the first commercial plant collectors into the Americas Australia India Japan China and the South Seas By the beginning of the twentieth century the Veitch s had become key figures within the gardening establishment involved with the Royal Horticultural Society from its beginnings and the great Chelsea Flower Show Combining an historian s eye for detail with a flair for storytelling Shephard charts the fortunes of one family and through them tells the fascinating story of the modern English garden CRC World Dictionary of Medicinal and Poisonous Plants Umberto Quattrocchi,2016-04-19 Written as a reference to be used within University Departmental Public Institutional Herbaria and Arboreta libraries this book provides the first starting point for better access to data on medicinal and poisonous plants Following on the success of the author s CRC World Dictionary of Plant Names and the CRC World Dictionary of Grasses the author provides the names of thousands of genera and species of economically important plants It serves as an indispensable time saving guide for all those involved with plants in medicine food and cultural practices as it draws on a tremendous range of primary and secondary sources This authoritative lexicon is much more than a dictionary It includes historical and linguistic information on botany and medicine throughout each volume The Graft Hybrid Matthew Holmes,2024-04-16 The global triumph of Mendelian genetics in the twentieth century was not a foregone conclusion thanks to the existence of graft hybrids These chimeral plants and animals are created by grafting tissue from one organism to another with the goal of passing the newly hybridized genetic material on to their offspring But prevailing genetic theory insisted that heredity was confined to the sex cells and there was no inheritance of characteristics acquired during an organism s lifetime Under sustained attacks from geneticists scientific belief in the existence of graft hybrids slowly began to decline Yet ordinary horticulturalists and breeders continued to believe in the power of grafting Matthew Holmes tells the story of these organisms which include multicolored chickens and black nightshades that grew tomatoes and their enduring influence on twentieth century biology Their creators sought a goal as ambitious as the wildest dreams of genetic engineering today to smash the barriers between species and freely exchange genes between organisms The Graft Hybrid presents a greater understanding of the controversial history of graft hybrids offering a crucial intervention in the history of genetics and the future of biological science Revealing New Worlds Suzanne Le-May Sheffield,2013-09-05 The story of nineteenth century science often tells a tale of a masculinized professionalizing domain Scientific man increasingly pushed women out marginalized them and constructed them as naturally feminine creatures incapable of intellectual work particularly scientific work Yet many women participated in various scientific endeavours throughout the century This work asks why when the waters were so inviting did women dive deeply into the swirling maelstrom of scientific practice scientific controversies and scientific writing Victorian women certainly recognised that male naturalists were not always willing to welcome them warmly into their inner sanctum of scientific work honour and prestige Moreover they recognised the existence of a more general social stigma that thwarted any woman's participation in intellectual endeavours However their fascination with algology botany and entomology led Margaret Gatty Marianne North and Eleanor Ormerod to reach beyond acceptable gendered roles to undertake field work to paint write popularize experiment and discover Each exhibited a passion for their chosen field a need for intellectual artistic and scientific work and a desire for scientific recognition and renown This book examines the ability of women to understand themselves and respond to their needs as complex human beings Within a framework of socially and scientifically constructed norms these Victorian women used science as a path to self awareness and intellectual accomplishment
