Iconographic Research Poetry Marcy Meyer, 2024-07-31 This open access book introduces readers to the craft of writing iconographic research poetry in a way that is scholarly yet playful By tracing the historical foundations of concrete and iconographic poetry as well as the development of research poetry and poetic inquiry the book examines the intellectual roots that inform this unique methodological approach The book offers a detailed description of the methods that can be used to design iconographic research poetry It includes step by step description of strategies that researchers can use to create iconographic research poetry from qualitative data By explicating the processes by which data can be represented in the form of iconographic research poetry and offering exemplars readers will find specific hands on strategies for creating their own iconographic research poems The book contains writing exercises designed to help aspiring iconographic research poets exercise their poetic imagination It also provides qualitative research instructors with suggestions for integrating iconographic research poetry into the classroom

Frank O'Hara and the Poetics of Saying 'I' Micah Mattix, 2011-03-03 While recent works of criticism on Frank O'Hara have focused on the technical similarities between his poetry and painting or between his use of language and poststructuralism Frank O'Hara and the Poetics of Saying I argues that what is most significant in O'Hara's work is not such much his borrowing from painters or his proto-Derridean use of language but his preoccupation with self-exploration and the temporal effects of his work as artifacts Following Pasternak's understanding of artistic inspiration as an act of love for the material world O'Hara explores moments of experience in an effort to both complicate and enrich our experience of the material world On the one hand in poems such as Second Avenue for example O'Hara works to muddy language through which experience is in part mediated with the use of parataxis allusions and absurd metaphors and similes On the other in his I do this I do that poems he names the events of his lunch hour in an effort among other things to experience time as a moment of fullness rather than as a moment of loss The book argues furthermore that O'Hara's view of the self as both an expression of the creative force at work in the world and as the temporal aggregate of finite experiences places him between so-called Romantic and postmodern theories of the lyric While it is often argued that O'Hara is a forerunner of a new critically informed materialist poetics this study concludes that O'Hara's work is somewhat less radical in its understanding of poetic meaning than is often claimed Moreover while O'Hara is preoccupied with his experience in his poems the book argues that he espouses in some respects a rather traditional view of love In addition to being a metaphor for the creative act love for O'Hara is the chance coming together of two entities Yet one of the ironies of this is that while love is for O'Hara a feeling that is the result of movement or the unexpected coming together of two otherwise separate volumes. The Cambridge Companion to the Sonnet A. D. Cousins, Peter Howarth, 2011-02-03 A team of distinguished poets and scholars provides an authoritative guide to the history and development of the sonnet
