Story Of A Tlingit Community A Problem I:

Hidden Dimensions Kathryn Bernick, 2011-11-01 Wet landscapes have figured significantly in the development of human societies and in the lives of many people through the ages The water saturated low oxygen conditions in these sites help preserve wood and other plant remains for thousands of years thus saving fragile material evidence that would otherwise be absent from the archaeological record Hidden Dimensions is a collection of essays drawn from papers presented at an international conference in Vancouver British Columbia in April 1995 Scholars from around the globe examine several aspects of wetland archaeology in North America Mexico Europe eastern Siberia and New Zealand Some of the essays in this volume explore environmental and historical contexts of wet sites as well as past human adaptation to wetland environments Others concentrate on the contributions of wetland archaeology to reconstructions of cultural history and the interpretation of unique perishable materials In addition to discussions on the dynamic nature of wetlands and concern about the future of the cultural resources they contain the authors look at practical issues of land management and object conservation In Hidden Dimensions the authors seek to raise awareness of the significance of wetland archaeology issues at a time when wetlands around the globe are rapidly shrinking and their cultural contents are at risk of disappearing A Forest of Time Peter Nabokov, 2002-02-25 Publisher Description The Story of a Tlingit Community Frederica De Laguna, 198?

Tongass National Forest (N.F.), Helicopter Landings in Wilderness, 1997 Tongass National Forest (N.F.), Angoon Hydroelectric Project, 2009 Engaging the Past Eric H. Monkkonen, 1994 Vigorous historical exploration has increased across the social sciences in the past two decades Originally published as a series of articles in the journal Social Science History the essays in this volume provide a guide to historical social science by surveying the use of historical data and methodologies in anthropology sociology political science economics and geography Each essay in Engaging the Past pays close attention to the unique problems and methods associated with its particular social scientific discipline By exploring questions raised by both contemporary and more established works within each field the authors show that some of the best and most innovative research in each of the social sciences includes a strong historical component Thus as Eric H Monkkonen's introduction shows these essays taken together make it clear that historical research provides a significant key to many of the major issues in the social sciences Intended for the growing community of both social scientists and historians interested in reading or researching historically informed social science Engaging the Past suggests future directions that might be taken by this work Above all by providing a set of user's guides written by respected social scientists it encourages future boundary crossings between history and each of the social sciences Contributors Andrew Abbott Richard Dennis Susan Kellog Eric H Monkkonen David Brian Robertson Hugh Rockoff Controversies in Archaeology Alice Beck Kehoe, 2016-07 Alice Beck Kehoe offers introductory students a method of evaluating and assessing claims about the past in this reader friendly concise text using examples from Native American origins to ancient astronauts Herring and

People of the North Pacific Thomas F. Thornton, Madonna L. Moss, 2021-01-31 A unique look at Indigenous knowledge fisheries management and marine ecology Herring are vital to the productivity and health of marine systems and socio ecologically Pacific herring Clupea pallasii is one of the most important fish species in the Northern Hemisphere Human dependence on herring has evolved for millennia through interactions with key spawning areas but humans have also significantly impacted the species distribution and abundance Combining ethnological historical archaeological and political perspectives with comparative reference to other North Pacific cultures Herring and People of the North Pacific traces fishery development in Southeast Alaska from precontact Indigenous relationships with herring to postcontact focus on herring products Revealing new findings about current herring stocks as well as the fish's significance to the conservation of intraspecies biodiversity the book explores the role of traditional local knowledge in combination with archeological historical and biological data in both understanding marine ecology and restoring herring to their former abundance

Space-Time Colonialism Juliana Hu Pegues, 2021-05-11 As the enduring last frontier Alaska proves an indispensable context for examining the form and function of American colonialism particularly in the shift from western continental expansion to global empire In this richly theorized work Juliana Hu Pegues evaluates four key historical periods in U S Alaskan history the Alaskan purchase the Gold Rush the emergence of salmon canneries and the World War II era In each Hu Pegues recognizes colonial and racial entanglements between Alaska Native peoples and Asian immigrants In the midst of this complex interplay the American colonial project advanced by differentially racializing and gendering Indigenous and Asian peoples constructing Asian immigrants as out of place and Alaska Natives as out of time Counter to this space time colonialism Native and Asian peoples created alternate modes of meaning and belonging through their literature photography political organizing and sociality Offering an intersectional approach to U S empire Indigenous dispossession and labor exploitation Space Time Colonialism makes clear that Alaska is essential to understanding both U S imperial expansion and the machinations of settler colonialism

Who Lived in this House? Annette McFadyen Clark, 1996-01-01 Until comparatively recent times both the Inupiat Inuit and the Koyukon Athapaskans spent the winter in wooden semisubterranean houses For the archaeologist who excavates one of these structures the shared traditions pose a difficult question Who lived in this house Three such house excavations in the Koyukuk River valley provide the basis for this fascinating study of ethnic identity and ethnoarchaeology along the Inupiat Koyukon cultural interface Published in English Frontiers of Colonialism Christine D. Beaulieu, 2017-07-11 For decades archaeologists have limited studies of frontiers and colonialism to a single polity empire or epoch This has been especially true of historical archaeologists but in this intriguing collection Beaulieu assembles archaeologists from around the world to determine the commonalities and differences of colonialism across the self imposed divide of contact v pre contact The work considers the expanding frontiers of the Romans Iroquois Egyptians Filipinos and the more familiar Mayan and Incan empires The goal of this volume is to expand the theoretical interpretations and perspectives to all archaeologists working in frontier colonial contexts not just those of the European empires Eldorado! Catherine Holder Spude, Robin O. Mills, Karl Gurcke, 2011-12-01 When gold was discovered in the far northern regions of Alaska and the Yukon in the late nineteenth century thousands of individuals headed north to strike it rich This massive movement required a vast network of supplies and services and brought even more people north to manage and fulfill those needs In this volume archaeologists historians and ethnologists discuss their interlinking studies of the towns trails and mining districts that figured in the northern gold rushes including the first sustained account of the archaeology of twentieth century gold mining sites in Alaska or the Yukon The authors explore various parts of this extensive settlement and supply system coastal towns that funneled goods inland from ships the famous Chilkoot Trail over which tens of thousands of gold seekers trod a host of retail oriented sites that supported prospectors and transferred goods through the system and actual camps on the creeks where gold was extracted from the ground Discussing individual cases in terms of settlement patterns and archaeological assemblages the essays shed light on issues of interest to students of gender transience and site abandonment behavior Further commentary places the archaeology of the Far North within the larger context of early twentieth century industrialized European American society
