

Story of the Session of the California Legislature
of 1909

By
Franklin Hichborn

The well-being of the State requires that the opponents to the machine in Senate and Assembly, regardless of party label, organize the Legislature. But back of this is the even more important requirement that there be elected to the Legislature disinterested citizens, with the responsibility of their citizenship upon them, rather than partisans, beholden, until their good purposes are made negative, by the responsibility of their partisanship.
