A Review of Tropical Forestry and Agroforestry Problem Areas and Policy Research Needs and the Planned Response of the CGIAR System

J. Spears, P. Oram, N. Byron, S. Scherr and A.M. Izac

Summary

Recognizing that policy research would become a high priority for CGIAR related forestry and agroforestry research, it was decided in 1990 to sponsor a series of forestry and agroforestry policy workshops involving national forest policy and research institution leaders, representatives of local and international NGOs and donor agencies. The objective was to obtain a better understanding of the main problem areas that could benefit from a CGIAR strategic research input.

The key issues that emerged from the five workshops are summarized in this report. Tropical forestry and agroforestry problem areas and policy research needs are reviewed in Part I and Annex 3 of the report. Based on the discussion in Part I, Part II introduces the policy research programs of the CGIAR Centres, focusing on CIFOR, ICRAF and IFPRI, and presents the research priority setting and planned responses of these CGIAR Centres to each of the identified five problem areas.

The program of intercentre collaboration and possible research activities outlined in the report is based on unconstrained resources which would ensure that CIFOR, ICRAF and IFPRI are allocated the resources requested in their Medium Term Plans. Thus, the Workshop series and this final report should not only be viewed as a research agenda which will trigger immediate responses but also as a useful mechanism for formulating the CGIAR Centres' long-term policy research direction and research needs to be addressed by national research institutions.

Kenady, 1991 Trees, People and Power Peter Utting, 2013-11-05 Behind the headlines about the loss of tropical forests in Latin America lies a complex and fascinating story of the social pressures which cause it Trees People and Power looks at the various groups interests and conflicts involved and explores the repercussions for forestry the environment and the livelihoods of the rural and urban poor Until the social and political dimensions of deforestation and forest protection schemes are understood measures to prevent or slow deforestation are likely to involve technical interventions which will prove ineffective in the long run and may well result in further impoverishment and environmental degradation Peter Utting takes a critical look at the experience of forest protection and tree planting in a number of countries and considers how social and political factors affect the feasibility of such schemes Many environmental projects and programmes have failed to balance concerns for the environment with those of human welfare Until they do it is unrealistic to expect any significant progress towards sustainable development Peter Utting is a senior researcher coordinator with the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development He is the author of Economic Adjustment under the Sandinistas UNRISD 1991 and Economic Reform and Third World Socialism Macmillan 1992 Originally published in 1993 Alternative Coca Reduction Strategies in the Andean Region , 1993 Quotas in International Environmental Agreements Amanda Wolf, 2014-04-23 Quotas have been used in international environmental agreements for at least a century and in tandem with incentive approaches should continue to be crucial to realizing a sustainable environment This text is a critical examination of quotas both as regulatory tools and as products of negotiation It reviews the main features of environmental problems the regulatory options and criteria used to judge them and the various ways of explaining negotiated outcomes Quotas in the management of fisheries other resources freshwater and marine pollution and air pollution are also described Selected examples are considered in detail to provide an understanding of how quotas were developed in scientific political economic and social context An assessment of the key features of quotas in practice leads to the identification of an emerging approach the negotiation of constrained local quotas The approach is a practical way to balance efficiency and fairness in complex negotiations without sacrificing environmental effectiveness
