Talismans And Trojan Horses:

Talismans and Trojan Horses Christopher A. Faraone, 1992 Greek legends and historical accounts contain many references to special statues or images designed to preserve the safety or livelihood of a city a business or a house These images which fall into two often overlapping categories talismans and apotropaia were erected according to special rituals and took on a variety of intriguing forms including lions locusts and bound effigies of destructive deities like Ares Looking closely at a wide variety of Greek texts and artifacts Faraone provides a detailed description and survey of these images and then uses this information to provide new interpretations of early Greek myths about Pandora the Trojan Horse and the living statues created by Hephaestus At each step he sets the Greek evidence in a wider eastern Mediterranean context with detailed discussions of Near Eastern and Egyptian practices that bear close resemblance to the Greek rituals The study closes with a re evaluation of the traditional scholarly approach to religious art as purely representational suggesting that some images instead of simply illustrating the power of a god were actually created to restrain and control the power of inimical supernatural forces such as plague gods and ghosts Focusing renewed attention on these often misinterpreted talismans and apotropaia Talismans and Trojan Horses will be illuminating for scholars and students of classics art and archaeology religion the Ancient Near East the Bible and mythology Talismans and Trojan Horses Christopher A.
