Step 1: Anticipate different strategies students might use for solving the problem (or how they might "see" a dot pattern),

Step 2: How will you record each of these strategies?

Step 3: What questions might you ask to fully understand and represent a student's thinking and/or method?

Step 4: In reflecting on this Number Talk, what do you want to remember? What problem might you do next, and why?

Housebuilding, Planning and Community Action John R. Short, Stephen Fleming, Stephen J. G. Witt, 2021-10-07 First published in 1986 Housebuilding Planning and Community Action was written as an examination of the conflicts and tensions resulting from private sector housing growth in Central Berkshire part of Britain's Silicon Valley along the M4 motorway The book provides a detailed consideration of the various actors and their interactions and explores the fight from Community groups and parish councils to halt development in opposition to the government's reluctance to discourage economic growth It focuses on four groups closely involved in the production allocation and consumption of new housing speculative housebuilders local planning authorities parish councils and community residents groups The motivations and actions of each group are examined and the tensions between them are highlighted set within the context of central government attitudes towards planning and private housebuilding Housebuilding Planning and Community Action has lasting relevance for those interested in human geography and the history of housebuilding and planning

Phonological Encoding and Monitoring in Normal and Pathological Speech Robert J. Hartsuiker, 2005 This book reports recent research on mechanisms of normal formulation and control in speaking and in language disorders such as stuttering aphasia and verbal dyspraxia The theoretical claim is that such disorders result both from deficits in a component of the language production system and interactions between this component and the system that monitors for errors and undertakes a corrective behaviour In particular the book focuses on phonological encoding in speech the construction of a phonetic plan for utterances on verbal self monitoring checking for correctness and initiating corrective action if necessary and on interactions between these processes Bringing together sixteen original chapters by leading international researchers this volume represents a coherent statement of current thinking in this exciting field The aim is to show how psycholinguistic models of normal speech processing can be applied to the study of impaired speech production This book will prove invaluable to any researcher student or speech therapist looking to bridge the gap between the latest advances in theory and the implications of these advances for language and speech pathology Teaching Bilingual and EAL Learners in Primary Schools Jean Conteh, 2012-08-22 A practical text for trainee primary teachers on teaching EAL children across the curriculum
