Wittner, Philip C Brown, 2016-03-22 Science technology and medicine all contributed to the emerging modern Japanese empire and conditioned key elements of post war development As the only emerging non Western country that was a colonial power in its own right Japan utilized these fields not only to define itself as racially different from other Asian countries and thus justify its imperialist activities but also to position itself within the civilized and enlightened world with the advantages of modern science technologies and medicine This book explores the ways in which scientists engineers and physicians worked directly and indirectly to support the creation of a new Japanese empire focussing on the eve of World War I and linking their efforts to later post war developments By claiming status as a modern internationally engaged country the Japanese government was faced with having to control pathogens that might otherwise not have threatened the nation Through the use of traditional and innovative techniques this volume shows how the government was able to fulfil the state's responsibility to protect society to varying degrees Chapter 14 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license The Modern Family in Japan Chizuko Ueno, 2009 This award winning book brings together Chizuko Ueno's groundbreaking essays on the rise and fall of the modern family in Japan Combining historical sociological anthropological and journalistic methodologies Ueno who is arguably the foremost feminist theoretician in Japan delineates in vivid detail how the family has been changing in form and function in the last hundred years In each chapter Ueno introduces the reader to a different facet of modern Japanese family life ranging from children who fantasize about being orphans to the elderly who confront pre senescence The central focus is on the housewife her history her ever changing responsibilities her ways of surviving mid life crisis This is an indispensable book for students and scholars seeking to understand modern Japan minority groups Until recently they constituted the largest group of foreign nationals yet they have been marginalized politically socially economically and culturally Korean women are doubly disadvantaged treated as inferior to men by both Korean and Japanese society Furthermore the first generation of Korean women migrants were not educated as children rendering them functionally illiterate and thus triply marginalized Late in life when family and work responsibilities became less onerous local authorities created educational opportunities which the women took up in unexpected numbers overloading the facilities The authorities responses effectively re marginalized them The elderly Korean women took a stance and in the process reconstituted themselves as social and political actors This book examines that self transformation process
