Gender and Social Protection in the Developing World Rebecca Holmes, Nicola Jones, 2013-03-14
Millions of pounds of international development funds are invested annually in social protection programmes to tackle poverty. Poverty is perpetuated by risk and vulnerability, much of which is gendered. Despite this, little attention has been paid to gender-sensitive policy and programme design and implementation. Gender and Social Protection in the Developing World introduces a much-needed gender lens to these debates. Drawing on empirical evidence from poor households and communities in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, the book provides rich insight into the effects of a range of social protection instruments. It concludes that with relatively simple changes to design and with investment in implementation capacity, social protection can contribute to transforming gender relations at the individual, intrahousehold, and community levels. With a foreword by Stephen Devereux.

Leading Issues in Competition, Regulation, and Development Paul Cook, 2004-01-01
The promotion of liberalized and deregulated markets by bilateral and multilateral aid donors and by global institutions such as the WTO has led to significant attention being paid to competition and regulatory reforms in developing economies. The process of reform involves the transfer and diffusion of market models derived from practice and theory in developed countries. However, in developing countries, regulation needs to do more than simply promote competitiveness and consumer interests; it also needs to ensure that the market nurtures development. By rigorously examining the numerous impacts of regulation, this book will help to fill a significant gap in the literature on economic and social development. The book, now available in paperback, draws together contributions from leading experts across a range of disciplines, including economics, law, politics, and governance, public management, and business management. The authors begin with an extensive overview of the issues of regulation and competition in developing countries and carefully illustrate the important themes and concepts involved. Using a variety of country and sector case studies, they move on to focus on the problems of applicability and adaptation that are experienced in the process of transferring best practice policy models from developed to developing countries. The book presents a clear agenda for further empirical research and is notable for its rigorous exploration of the links between theory and practice. Although there is substantial interest in competition and regulation, as yet there has been relatively little investigation of these issues in developing economies. This book redresses the balance and will be a valuable resource for researchers, academics, teachers, and students interested in development economics and development studies. It will also be of great relevance for practitioners and policymakers working in the fields of competition policy and regulatory reform.

Economic transformation and diversification require solutions that take account of the political economy of reform This book explores the process of economic transformation using Senegal as an example Sound macroeconomic and fiscal policies are prerequisites for achieving this kind of transformation but these policies need to include the appropriate industrial policies and good economic governance which provide incentives to help small and medium sized enterprises emerge from the informal sector and for foreign direct investment to use the country as a platform for globally competitive production In many low income countries extensive rent seeking and patronage have generated stability at the expense of inclusive growth and held back development Although policymakers know what is needed to address these problems and achieve economic transformation and diversification how to do it remains a challenge This book shows how the political economy of reform may be navigated to achieve transformation For example the use of special economic zones may solve the problem if good global governance is emphasized along with linking the zones to the global economy Enhancing Social Protection in Asia
