Lying and Deception in Everyday Life Michael Lewis, Carolyn Saarni, 1993-02-05 I speak the truth not so much as I would but as much as I dare Montaigne All cruel people describe themselves as paragons of frankness Tennessee Williams Truth and deception like good and evil have long been viewed as diametrically opposed and unreconcilable Yet few people can honestly claim they never lie In fact deception is practiced habitually in day to day life from the polite compliment that doesn't accurately relay one's true feelings to self deception about one's own motivations What fuels the need for people to intricately construct lies and illusions about their own lives If deceptions are unconscious does it mean that we are not responsible for their consequences Why does self deception or the need for illusion make us feel uncomfortable Taking into account the sheer ubiquity and ordinariness of deception this interdisciplinary work moves away from the cut and dried notion of duplicity as evil and illuminates the ways in which deception can also be understood as a adaptive response to the demands of living with others The book articulates the boundaries between unethical and adaptive deception demonstrating how some lies serve socially approved goals while others provoke distrust and condemnation Throughout the volume focuses on the range of emotions from feelings of shame fear or envy to those of concern and compassion that motivate our desire to deceive ourselves and others Providing an interdisciplinary exploration of the widespread phenomenon of lying and deception this volume promotes a more fully integrated understanding of how people function in their everyday lives Case illustrations humor and wit concrete examples and even a mock television sitcom script bring the ideas to life for clinical practitioners behavioral scientists and philosophers and for students in these realms      The Automaticity of Everyday Life Robert S. Wyer, Jr., 2014-02-25 As Skinner argued so pointedly the more we know about the situational causes of psychological phenomena the less need we have for postulating internal conscious mediating processes to explain those phenomena Now as the purview of social psychology is precisely to discover those situational causes of thinking feeling and acting in the real or implied presence of other people it is hard to escape the forecast that as knowledge progresses regarding social psychological phenomena there will be less of a role played by free will or conscious choice in accounting for them In other words because of social psychology's natural focus on the situational determinants of thinking feeling and doing it is inevitable that social psychological phenomena increasingly will be found to be automatic in nature This 10th book in the series addresses automaticity and how it relates to social behavior The lead article written by John Bargh argues that social psychology phenomena are essentially automatic in nature as opposed to being mediated by conscious choice or reflection Bargh maintains that an automatic mental phenomenon is that which occurs reflexively whenever certain triggering conditions are in place when those conditions are present the process runs off autonomously independently of conscious guidance In his lead article he focuses on these preconscious automatic processes that can be contrasted with postconscious and goal dependent forms of automaticity which depend on more than the mere presence of environmental objects or events Because social psychology like automaticity theory and research is also largely concerned with phenomena that occur whenever certain situational features or factors are in place social psychology phenomena are essentially automatic Students and researchers in social and cognitive psychology will find this to be a provocative addition to the series      Social Psychology in Everyday Life Minakshi Bansal, 2024-04-22
